LIBERALS CARRY BY-ELECTIONS

Victory In Two Ontario Seats Shows Vote Trend

Ontario Premier Jubilant—Sees Result as Warning, Indication of Approaching General Election.

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—Ontario Liberals today rejoiced in two provincial by-election victories and professed to believe their successes at the polls presaged a Liberal swing in the coming series of Dominion by-elections. Liberals of South Wellington and North Grey sent Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn two new followers, leaving no doubt in the minds of the administration that its policies are approved.

Dr. J. H. King of Guelph will represent South Wellington in the legislature, and North Grey's member will be Roland Patterson. Dr. King ran in the by-election yesterday as a straight Liberal, while Mr. Patterson ran as a Liberal-Progressive. Their victories maintained the standing of the Liberal ranks at the same figure produced by the provincial elections June 19—the legislature standing reading: Liberals 66; Conservatives 17; Liberal-

The MacMillan Appeal Fund

The right of a jury to bring in a verdict in accordance with the evidence brought before them having been challenged by the action of Mr. Justice W. C. Ives in overriding the jury in the MacMillan-Brownlee case, and the resentment of the general public having already initiated the appeal against this action of the trial judge being taken to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Alberta, sponsors of the MacMillan Appeal Fund are now pressing forward to a goal which will enable the case to be taken to the Privy Council if necessary.

Lists are still out in various parts of the province and throughout Western Canada, and those having them in hand are asked to forward their subscriptions and lists in to the headquarters of the fund as soon as possible. Others who wish to contribute to the fund are also asked to send in their donations to headquarters.

Contributions may be made direct to the special account which has been opened in the Bank of Nova Scotia; to Mrs. Ella C. Timbres, secretary of the Canadian Civil Liberties Protective Association, at 11107 88th avenue, Edmonton, or to the treasurer of the fund, R. Jenkin, at 10444 Jasper avenue, Edmonton. FARM WIFE IS HELD PENDING MURDER PROBE

Flat Lake Inquest Will be Held on Wednesday Afternoon

ST. PAUL, Aug. 21.—Although no charge has been laid, the wife of Mike Dranchuk, farmer at Flat Lake, 14 miles northeast of here, who was found killed by an axe early Monday, is held in R.C.M.P. cells here. Inquest into Dranchuk's death was held Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Dranchuk was arrested by police at 8:30 a.m. Monday, wandering around in a field on a farm northwest of her home. According to reports she appeared dazed and her eyes stared wildly.

ATTEMPTED TO FLEE

She had made a futile attempt to flee into the bush country, after stopping at the farm of a neighbor, William Dowhaniuk, rumors state.

Mrs. Dranchuk is said to have told Dowhaniuk that her husband had refused to give her $20 which she had asked. He had told her to wait until Tuesday when he would sell some pigs. Thinking she would not get the money, she had attacked him in his sleep.

Billy Dranchuk, 14, said he had been sleeping with his father, his brother, Pete, six, sleeping with his mother in the next room.

At 3 or 4 a.m. he was awakened by his father kicking and shouting, "I've been hit with an axe." The father jumped out of bed, ran to a window, looked out, then reeled and fell.

LOOKED FOR MOTHER

Running outside the boy looked for his mother and then ran half a mile to the nearest neighbor, Fred Bertzowski, who rode a horse to Flat Lake store, four miles away, and phoned R.C.M.P. at St. Paul.

Corporal Lechasseur and Constable Patterson received the message at 5:45 a.m. and rushed to the scene.

The family came from Poland four years ago.

Hold Inquest At Flat Lake

Inquest into the death of Mike Dranchuk, Flat Lake farmer, whose dead body was found in his home on Monday morning, is being held Tuesday afternoon at the Flat Lake community hall.

The coroner's party inspected the body on Monday and a post mortem was performed by Dr. J. P. Decosse. The proceedings revealed a deep gash three inches long under the right ear.

Ottawa Refuses To Share Costs Of Ontario Work

Fifteen Million Dollar Expenditure of Henry in Pre-election Splurge Repudiated by Bennett.

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—The Prime Minister of Canada Monday proffered the Province of Ontario $750,000 a month as a contribution to the direct relief expenditure, a cut of 11 per cent from last year.

The Prime Minister declined to accept any responsibility for any federal share of the $15,000,000 or more spent by Hon. George Henry in his frantic pre-election splurge on the roads and other public works.

"To do Mr. Bennett justice", said Premier Hepburn later "he declined any responsibility for the Henry program at the outset. Mr. Henry without any sanction went ahead and spent the money. He ordered the expenditure and then the requisition to Ottawa and it was refused by Mr. Bennett. Arthur Ellis pointed out the refusal to Mr. Henry but Henry told them to go ahead with the work. The money was spent and now we have to foot the bill".

Mr. Bennett, however, agreed to give further consideration to this matter. The Dominion's shares of this unauthorized expenditure is $5,409,000 on a one third basis, and if Mr. Bennett finally refuses to pay then the province is burdened with the expenditure. In addition as many municipalities cannot pay their one-third, there will be an additional burden on the province. Mr. Bennett declined to increase any contribution to provincial public works, but will continue with his plans for a $40,000,000 federal building program. The absence of any federal contribution will reduce the possibility of any extensive building program by the provincial government.

Police Believe John Henry Fraser Implicated in Calgary Killing

Less than 12 hours after he held up and robbed a parked couple at the point of a pistol on the Municipal golf links in the early hours of Tuesday, John Henry Fraser, diminutive 20-year-old two-gunman from North Battleford, Saskatoon and Calgary, was given a penitentiary sentence of two years and six months by Magistrate Esten Williams in city police court when the tow-headed, pale-faced youth pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery while armed.

The hold-up occurred at 12:40 a.m. Tuesday. At 11:50 a.m. after police court had adjourned when the docket was finished, the two-gun man was led in under the escort of Detective Sergeant Bert Petheram and Detectives Frank Kingzett and Murdo Munro, who arrested him at 7:45 a.m. Tuesday.

Sergeant John Leslie called the court to order as Magistrate Williams entered, and Harry Holmes, clerk of the court, read out the charge.

LISTENED CLOSELY

The tiny bandit could hardly peep over the top of the dock as he listened closely to the charge.

"How do you plead, guilty or not guilty?"

Wealthy London Kidnap Victim's Health Improving—No Clues

John S. Labatt, wealthy London, Ont., brewer, kidnapped and released for a reported $50,000 ransom, might have been held by his abductors in a log wood near Grand Bend, Ont., according to the latest information on the first ransom kidnapping in Canada.

Improvement in the condition of the kidnap victim led to the belief he would shortly accompany police along the London-Sarnia highway to point out the spot where his abductors accosted him while he drove from his Sarnia Beach home to London to keep a business appointment early last Tuesday.

A resident of Port Huron, Ont., who spent his vacation near Grand Bend, Monday described seeing a bright fire in the vicinity of the Ausable river mouth last Thursday and also an automobile signalling with its headlights toward the pine wood in the Grand Bend area. Later investigation showed pine wood had been used to light the fire which was extinguished by sand. Labatt is reported to have smelled pine wood while a captive.

The Port Huron resident said between nine and 10 o'clock that night he investigated the movement of three automobiles and the fire. The two Grand Bend vacationists

What are the Bennett Government possibilities in the next federal election? Is the Conservative party looking around for any and every straw they can grasp? General opinion is that the "starving millions" won't support Bennett. In this article, the second by C. OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—Everybody says the Bennett Government is going to be licked at the next election.

Everybody may be right, but R. B. is not going to give up without a fight.

If you were in a boat drifting on the rocks and you had your health and a certain amount of time and some equipment with which you could help yourself, would you sit down calmly and wait for the wreck, or would you struggle to avert it?

Even though you were morally certain that the ultimate disaster could not be prevented, would you strive at least to delay the crash by every possible minute in the hope that something would turn up?

Mr. Bennett and the Conservative party are just as human as you are in their desire for self-preservation.

Right now they are looking around for any and every straw

???? About Mary? Doug Just Smiles

REEL ROMANCE IS ONLY TOPIC FOR 'DOUGLAS'

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21—Douglas Fairbanks returned to Hollywood today and briskly talked about romance, but it was reel romance, not real life affairs.

About Mary Pickford, his estranged wife, he snappily declined to talk. Mary was not there to meet him.

"There is no use asking me about that," was his emphatic thrust with challenging eyes, when asked about rumors of a domestic reconciliation.

"I have nothing to say at this time."

The actor explained he would stay in Hollywood indefinitely, and had plans for his greatest picture.

"I expect to make an epic photoplay that will be the 'Cavalcade of China,' he said.

"I do not expect to go back to England, according to my present plans," he said suddenly.

TERRIFIC STORM KILLS 700 IN MANCHU PORT

DARIEN, Aug. 11.—Seven hundred persons are dead, 60,000 are without homes, 1,300 houses have been destroyed and 600 junks carried out to sea by a terrific tornado that burst over Antung, one of the chief ports of Manchukuo, it was reported here today.

Martial law has been proclaimed in the region, said Government troops are converging on the devastated area. Frantic relief workers are unable to reach Chinese in the inundated quarters, however, and more deaths are expected.

Those left homeless by the inundations which carried away both houses and junks are reported to be without food.

CHEAP GOLD IS PROVEN GILT COPPER

MONTREAL, Aug. 21. — It looked fishy when a diamond drill offered gold for sale on one of Montreal's main thoroughfares for $14 an ounce considerably less than half its market value. So the prospective customer called police even though the sample of gold did look all right. Detectives arrested the man and found the nuggets he had for sale were nothing but cleverly disguised copper.

INSULL TRIAL IS UNSETTLED

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Judge James H. Wilkerson settled the question of a separate trial for Samuel Insull with a definite "no" Monday and then unsettled it by asking the attorneys what would happen if Insull becomes ill again.

On grounds of health and the complexity of a trial of 17 co-defendants, the senior Insull had asked to be tried separately for the alleged misuse of United States mails in selling his Corporation Securities company paper.

"The motion for a severance is denied," Judge Wilkerson said, and ordered trial to begin Sept. 13.

Then, in the next breath, he brought up informally the matter of the elderly defendant's health. Insull's heart is not strong, and he suffers from diabetes insipidus.

Score at End of Play Australia 701 and 186 for Two, England 321

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Australians maintained almost an insuperable lead over England as the fifth and deciding test cricket match concluded its third day's play this evening. Scores in the match, which will be fought to a finish, were: Australian 701 and 186 for two wickets; England 321.

England, facing the near-record breaking total of the Aussies, saw five wickets fall in quick succession as the game resumed today, but that was not the worst of their misfortunes. William Bowes was forced out of the game altogether by illness, and Leslie Ames was put out of the match with injuries. Consequently only nine men batted, and there was a deficit of 380 runs on the first innings.

When the Australians got in to bat again, things looked brighter, but it was not for long. W. H. Ponsford, who scored 266 in the first innings, was good for only 22 runs today, but Don Bradman and Stanley McCabe partnered to bring the score up from 42 to 186 at the close, when both were unbeaten, with 76 and 60 runs respectively.

TOKYO, Aug. 21.—Japan accused the Soviet Union of breach of faith Monday for having made public the price which Manchukuo offered for the purchase of the Soviet share in the Chinese Eastern railroad, together with other figures from the recent negotiations.

Wins Against Snake

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 21.—The craft of a shiny, black, spider, its body barely larger than a pinhead, was enough Monday to hold at bay—if not slowly to conquer—a foot-long garter snake, a mortal enemy.

The two are locked in a death duel in the cellar of a Baltimore home. After more than 60 hours of conflict, the tide of battle was definitely on the side of the minute foeman, "no bigger than an eye of the snake."

The snake entered the cellar four days ago and sought to make a morsel of the spider. Instead it ran afoul the spider's web, swung between a spigot and a water boiler near the cellar floor.

Intermittent writhing and twisting to free itself has all but left the snake exhausted. Its struggles slowly are becoming less violent.

All the while, the little spider, full of the cunning and patience of its kind, perches on its web waiting for the struggles to cease—for the death of its foe.

STRANGE ACTS OF PILOT ARE NEW PUZZLE

SHORTAGE IS FOUND BOOKS

SWAN RIVER, Man. Aug. 21.—A shortage in the municipality's accounts of $1,900 has been disclosed by Manitoba government auditors, it was revealed Monday, and J. B. Hands, secretary-treasurer, has been suspended pending a complete investigation.

The shortage was discovered 10 days ago following a check-up by auditors. Reeve Goodman said Monday nothing definite had been made of the shortage so far discovered but auditors are continuing an investigation of the accounts. Records for the past several years are being delved into.

RAIN CHECKS PICTOU FIRES

ANTIGONISH, N.S., Aug. 21.—Checked temporarily by a two-hour downpour, forest fires raging since Saturday in Pictou and Antigonish counties stubbornly continued on their courses today while forest rangers made plans to lessen danger to communities which yesterday came near to being wiped out.

Fire still crackled along the north shore of Antigonish county but it was moving more slowly. Georgeville was in immediate danger yesterday and men worked on the roofs of buildings to smother sparks. Flames curving in from the burning forest threatened to ignite the Roman Catholic church but were beaten back by volunteer workers.

Valuable timberlands, farm crops and homes have been destroyed with a mounting toll in the past few days. Lesser fires continued to burn in Cumberland, Cape Breton and Colchester but were well under control today.

waited on the roadside to catch the licenses of the three cars but they sped down a side road and disappeared.

It was a few hours later that Labatt was released on the outskirts of Toronto. It was believed the car that signalled with the headlights called the custodians of Labatt to join in speeding to Toronto to release the man.

Labatt was said to have been terrified over vengeance threats if he revealed anything about the kidnappers. Dr. W. J. Tillman, his doctor, said last night he was now "happy and cheerful." It is expected he might aid police now in their search for the kidnappers.

While the forces of law studied slender clues in efforts to apprehend the kidnappers, Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck prepared rigid enactment to forestall the work of snatchers. Police activity centred in western Ontario along the border territory but secrecy prevailed on every move.

CONTROL SOUGHT

"I will ask the Ontario legislature to enact a law giving police authority to close the bank accounts, seal the safety vaults and generally take protective control of the affairs of all in position to pay ransom while a unified police force trails any person kidnapped in future" the attorney general declared when interviewed at Ottawa.

We are anxious to solve the Labatt riddle but for the moment it can't be solved in the newspapers," he added. "The press will get the whole story soon, I hope."

An efficient police force to cut off escape of kidnappers and eliminating ransom payment to make the crime unprofitable were the two factors to be stressed in combatting the work of snatchers, he said.

Police in searching for kidnappers of Labatt, released early Friday morning after a reported $50,000 ransom payment, have been covered by the attorney general to give out no information. All information to be made public will come from the attorney general himself.

Police Shake-up Is Predicted

TORONTO, Aug. 21—The Mail and Empire today says a shake-up in the provincial police force was predicted at Queen's Park in connection with certain Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck considered the handling of the John D. Labatt kidnapping case was "most inefficient."

Mr. Roebuck's statement on the education, calling for unification of all police effort on such cases, was considered to hold significance regarding the present organization of the provincial force, the Mail and Empire says.

The Mail and Empire adds: "It is understood the attorney general spoke in very plain terms to the officers stationed with the Royal York hotel when he learned John D. Labatt, the kidnapped brewer heir, had walked up to the room of his brother, Hugh, and had gone out again without any sign of the duty knowing anything about it. The result was that Mr. Roebuck took complete charge of the case himself."

Kosloff's Wife Files Charges

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—Theodore Kosloff, Russian dancer, was charged in a divorce suit yesterday with having brought other women into his home to live.

Kosloff's wife, Alexandra, named two women, Vera Fredova and another as "Kosloff's concubines." Some time prior to 1916, Mrs. Kosloff charged, her husband became infatuated with Miss Fredova, went on numerous trips with her, and from 1921 to 1926 insisted she live at their home.

The dancing master brought "Kosloff's Flower" into their home last May 31 and ordered that she live there, Mrs. Kosloff alleged.

Tot Falls From Train; Uninjured

BRADFORD, Ont., Aug. 21—Fourteen-month-old James Kelly of Bradford, was the only one of a holiday party of children today along with their unemployed parents for a brief spell at the seaside at Marathon Beach.

The train was going 20 miles an hour when Master Kelly fell through a window. To the amazement of the rest, the infant picked himself up unaided and toddled off to play after the train as fast as his sturdy little legs would carry him.

He was found by a man noticing nothing worse than a few bruises, but to his intense dismay he was ordered to the local hospital for safety for a day or so, after which he will go home.

Dry Areas in Saskatchewan Will Take Large Amount From Manitoba and Alberta.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 21.—Western Canada today awaited Ottawa's attitude on the removal of duty on hay by the United States with a view to importing from Canada to meet livestock feed shortages south of the international boundary.

Replying to a telegram from Hon. Robert Weir, federal minister of agriculture, a telegram was sent from Regina Monday by Hon. J. G. Taggart, Saskatchewan minister of agriculture, citing hay needs in the mid-west province's drought area.

24,000 NEEDED

Mr. Taggart said 24,000 tons of hay would be required in Saskatchewan from Manitoba and 3,000 tons from Alberta to meet needs in the drought areas. The shortage was acute, and care of Canadian cattle would have to be considered.

Hay production in the western provinces this year has not yet been estimated. Manitoba last year produced 847,000 tons of hay and clover, exclusive of wild hay and alfalfa. The wild hay production totalled 653,000 tons. Saskatchewan drought-area farmers obtained approximately the same quantity of hay last year from Manitoba as will be required this year.

HAY ONLY NOW

Reports from Washington Monday indicated the tariff on hay would be removed shortly because of the acute feed supply. While applying to all forage crops, removal of the regulations was expected to be effective for hay only.

TWO-GUN MAN SENTENCED TO PRISON TERM

mary disposition by the presiding magistrate, or trial before a judge and jury or judge in the superior criminal court.

"I'll be tried by the magistrate," mumbled accused, nervously flicking back a tow-colored lock of hair which hung down into his eyes.

Detective Kingzett then stepped into the stand and gave a brief resume of the particular charges, only one in a long series of stickups, police say—to which the stubborn youth had pleaded guilty.

STAGE MONEY

The tawdry trophy secured by the young thug was produced by the detective when he relieved the big roll of brightly colored and impressive looking stage money. Also produced was the gunman's $3.50 in real money from Miss Loretta Wenchere, St. Regis hotel, and Percy Fenton, 10215 115 street, the other occupant of the parked car. 27 cents was taken.

Two gleaming nickle-plated six-shooters, both fully loaded with 32 calibre cartridges, two flashlights and a pair of rubber gloves were also produced by the detective.

SECURED FROM GIRL

Detective Kingzett stated that the stage money was secured from the girl. She got it during some game at a party, she told police. Apparently in the darkness, it misled the gunman but it could not by any means be passed as counterfeit.

Following Detective Kingzett's statement, C. C. Scott, police magistrate, pointed out to His Worship that the charge was laid under an amended section of the Criminal Code—by which any sentence given a criminal for a crime in which firearms are used automatically brings a term of two years over and above the jail term given by the court.

The prisoner stirred uneasily when this information was given the court.

"You ever been up before?" his worship asked.

"No, this is my first offence."

"Maybe it's the first time you have been caught, eh?"

No answer.

"Where's your home?"

"Haven't got any home."

BORN IN CANADA

The accused then added that he had been born in this country—in Morinville, Battleford district.

His worship passed sentence as stated, giving the youth six months in jail, and he was added to the two years under the provisions of section 446 of the Criminal Code.

The conviction was shown by the prisoner, who appeared later to be somewhat relieved, grinning and nodding his head as the guard led away.

The police, however, have plenty more that they wish to talk to the tiny gunman about.

There is a suspicion that he may have been involved in the murder of Inspector Joe Carruthers of the Calgary police, shot dead on the night of June 12, 1932, when he tried to effect the arrest of a so-far-unknown bandit.

The gulf links hold-up of Tuesday morning is the first of a series of chain of similar occurrences in the city during the past few weeks, which suggests gangs are forming "Lovers' Lane" localities, have been held up and robbed by a youthful gunman.

PURSE-SNATCHINGS

A chain of purse-snatchings is also being investigated.

An hour after the golf links hold-up, a home at 9719 106A street was forcibly entered, and the marauder threatened to shoot Mr. and Mrs. Price. He escaped when Mrs. Price called police.

There is also the Safeways store stick-up of some weeks ago, when a lone, armed bandit took approximately $900 from the place.

Police have several victims of the bandit assembled at police headquarters Tuesday, to see if they can identify him, if he is the man.

Sergeant Fetherarn gave warm praise to Detectives Munro and Kingzett, in charge of the arrest which climaxed a night of whirlwind raids of rooming houses, and a long patient and, at times, apparently fruitless search for the lone gunman who is now physically "put a stop to courting in "Lovers Lane" after dark.

The police incident about further activities in the case, but it is believed that additional serious charges are pending against Fraser.

Fraser is alleged to have been doing the alias of Earl McGowan the gunman first threatened to shoot Mr. and Mrs. Price. He escaped when Mrs. Price called police.

He says that his father was a Scot, and his mother a Norwegian.

J. W. CONNELLY AGAIN HEADS MORTICIANS

J. H. Hunter, Westlock, Also Re-elected Vice-President here

Unanimously re-elected president of the Alberta Funeral Directors and Embalmers Association for the 1934-35 term was J. W. Connelly of Edmonton will pilot that organization through the coming year. Vice president J. E. Hunter of Westlock was also re-elected by the convention now in session in Edmonton, while George McLaughlin of Tofield was elected to fill a vacancy on the board of the organization.

DINNER AND DANCE

The convention also decided to leave the appointment of the secretary treasurer in the hands of the council instead of making that office an elective one as in the past, and delegates who have been attending the sessions of the convention since Monday morning will be heard at deliberations this evening with a dinner and dance at the Macdonald hotel.

At the Monday night session of the convention held in the Memorial Hall, A. C. Fowler, provincial secretary treasurer, reported that 95 per cent of the funeral directors in Alberta who are eligible for membership in the association have now joined and that the organization was in good financial shape.

Several of the members attending are accompanied by their wives and on Monday afternoon the Ladies' Auxiliary held a tea in the Palm Room of the Macdonald for the visiting ladies.

Rev. Monsegneur Neilligan was the speaker at Tuesday's business breakfast at the Shasta and at the 10.30 session in the Memorial Hall, Professor Clement Williams spoke on Advertising and Business Methods.

CORONER SPEAKS

Dr. A. E. Cockwaile, chief coroner for Alberta spoke on the duties of the coroner at the afternoon session at which Dr. Williams continued his series of lectures and demonstrations on embalming and the restorative art.

The dinner in the Macdonald hotel marks the closing of the convention. Rev. D. M. Perley of First Presbyterian church being the speaker at the banquet. Dancing will wind up with a dance at the Macdonald tonight.

Will Develop Rich Holdings At Bear Lake

Extensive development of pitchblende claims in the Great Bear Lake will be undertaken shortly by the Eldorado Mines Limited, according to Edward Hargreaves, director of the company, who is also a director of the Canadian Radium Development Company. Mr. Hargreaves arrived in Edmonton Tuesday from Toronto and will proceed north to the company's claims in the course of a few days.

Diamond drill development work has been carried out by this company and 50 tons of ore will be shipped out under contract with the Eldorado company for refining at Port Hope plant, stated Mr. Hargreaves.

The Hottah Lake company hold 74 claims, including the original pitchblende discovery claim, and are pursuing development work on three of them.

A chemical analysis of ore taken from the No. 2 claim showed pitchblende content of 48.4 per cent, according to a report made by M. Pochon, chief chemist for the Eldorado Gold Mines.

LIBERALS ADD TWO SEATS IN BY-ELECTIONS

Progressives 6; C.C.F. 1; Independent 1; U.N.O. 1; total 90.

Premier Hepburn described the results of the voting as an endorsement of his administration and professed to see in them an indication that the Liberals would gain victories in the five Dominion by-elections, Sept. 24.

Largest majority ever recorded in Wellington South went to Dr. King who takes the seat made vacant by death in an auto crash July 1 of D. Paul Munro, K.C. In a straight fight with Major Beverley Robson of Guelph, Conservative, he obtained a 6,253 majority. The vote being, King 10,157 and Robson 3,904.

The three-cornered contest in North Grey resulted in 7,809 votes for Mr. Patterson, E. N. Cooper, mayor of Meaford and Independent Liberal, who received 4,603 votes and Maurice Christie, C.C.F., 1,031.

Offers New Stimulus

OTTAWA, Aug. 21—Voicing appreciation of the endorsement given to his administration by the electors of North Grey and South Wellington on Monday, Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, expressed the keenest gratification at the results. They would tend to drive the new provincial government to greater endeavors to improve the social and economic well-being of the province, he said.

Mr. Hepburn saw in the results a warning to the Dominion government and an indication of what awaited Mr. Bennett in the forthcoming Dominion by-elections. A victory for Mr. Mackenzie King in the voting on Sept. 24, would, said Mr. Hepburn, "definitely force a general election in Canada."

"This is our first test of strength," said Mr. Hepburn, "and we welcomed it. The results show clearly that the people are even more satisfied with our policies now than at the general election."

Britain Calls For German Debt Action

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Great Britain stimulated a very outspoken note to Germany concerning the payments of British commercial credits amounting to 15,000,000 which were extended before the standstill on the Anglo-German agreement on transfers during the existing moratorium, the Daily Herald reported today.

The newspaper added, the British note was not in the form of a threat, although the sentiment in some British circles was such that the idea of placing a heavy surtax on German imports was seriously discussed. Official British quarters were reluctant to admit that definite action had been taken, which authorized circles described as "very strong action."

match but Australia apparently will go into an unconquerable lead. The first was won by Australia, the second by England, and the third was drawn. This match decides the rubber. Twenty-five thousand persons saw the third day's play.

Within the space of little more than an hour and a half tonight England lost five of her best wickets for a total of 52 runs. With Wyatt, Hammond, Allen, Verity, Maurice Leyland and Leslie Ames became associated in a grim stand that helped to rally fortunes somewhat. At lunchtime this pair had put on 40 and 28 runs respectively, hitting the attack for the time being.

103-RUN MARK

Clarry Grimmett, the googly artist, opened the bowling for Australia, who had an overnight total of 31 runs. O'Reilly took the other end. Wyatt was 9 with out at the resumption, sent up the 103-run mark on the board with a boundary off Grimmett. Immediately afterwards the first wicket fell at 106, Eddie Paynter stumped for 32.

Woolley, the veteran, joined Walters. Then Walters, trying a drive was easily caught and bowled by young Kippax off O'Reilly. Walters accounted for 64 runs out of 106.

Woolley, after scoring four, was caught at slip off Bill McCabe off O'Reilly. The Australians were helped by the pitch, still dewy.

Wally Hammond and Captain Wyatt became partnered. Wyatt then lost his wicket to Grimmett, after scoring 17 to 136.

EASILY CAUGHT

Hammond started to hit out again, getting boundaries off Grimmett, Fleetwood-Smith and O'Reilly. But slashing at a ball going for his offstump, he was easily caught at the wicket by Oldfield, having for only 15 runs. England had now lost five wickets in an hour and 15 minutes, for only 82 runs.

Maurice Leyland and Leslie Ames took a stand. Ames hit Grimmett for a fine drive and Ames with a legglance sent up 152 runs on the board.

Chipperfield came on the attack, and Ebeling took over from Grimmett. Ames was caught at the wicket by Oldfield, having scored 22 out of 42.

Bradman was batting aggressively at the other end, and he signalled departure by hoisting a six off Chipperfield over the pavilion and the board, following it with two boundary cracks off Allan.

Then Leyland caught Fleetwood-Smith off the latter's own bowling. Sutcliffe dropped him in the second slip at 15. Meanwhile Bradman gained the upper hand completely. A spell of scintillating like leg-break bowling by Clark did no good.

The partnership got its 100 in an hour and a quarter and went on to bring the total up to 186 for two when stumps were drawn.

NICKELS FLY AS OLD PIANO TAKES CRASH

HAMILTON, O., Aug. 21.—Workmen razing an old building found an ancient nickel-in-the-slot piano on the second floor and decided it would be easier to drop it to the ground than to carry it down.

They did—and a moment later 20 workmen were scrambling for a bushel basketfull of nickels which rolled out.

O'Reilly had set an extremely alert trap, handed with Bradman who seemed to be all places at once.

GOLF CLUB

Leyland got his own century, and the cheers had not subsided when young Ebeling, bowling at the Vauxhall end, smashed Verity's stumps. Only Leyland's wicket was left.

Grimmett shattered Leyland's wicket to end a magnificent and courageous stand of two hours and 40 minutes in which Leyland scored 110 runs, including a six and 14 fours.

The fall of the eighth wicket spelled the end of England's first-innings misfortune.

Tea was taken and Australia went to bat on the resumption, before with no time limit there was no necessity for England to follow on. Wolley replaced Ames behind the wicket. R. J. Gregory of Surrey joined the team while McMurray, a former Millwall soccer player, was also taken on. These substitutions of course were only effective so far as England remained in the field.

Edward Clark opened the bowling for England, and consisted of Sutcliffe, Hammond, Verity and Allen.

Ponsford, who had 266 in the first innings, opened the batting with Brown.

LEG-TRAP WORKED

Clark's leg-trap worked very efficiently. Thirteen runs were up when Brown, who had missed only a single, was splendidly caught by Allen.

Ponsford himself fared little better. The great batsman fell victim in much the same manner, to Grimmett, who had caught only 32 scored 22 out of 42.

Bradman was batting aggressively at the other end, and he signalled departure by hoisting a six off Chipperfield over the pavilion and the board, following it with two boundary cracks off Allan.

Then Leyland caught Fleetwood-Smith off the latter's own bowling. Sutcliffe dropped him in the second slip at 15. Meanwhile Bradman gained the upper hand completely. A spell of scintillating like leg-break bowling by Clark did no good.

City Will Abide by Provisions of Charter Terms

No work will be undertaken under the $800,000 federal loan which has not been petitioned for or advertised under the terms of the city's charter, stated both Acting Mayor James East and Commissioner David Mitchell Tuesday morning.

There are numerous petitions on hand with the city for local improvements, stated Mr. Mitchell, which are being considered, and on action will be taken until a revised schedule of local improvement construction work has been approved by city council.

The new schedule will be submitted to council at Monday's meeting, he stated.

Questioned relative to the proposed ratepayers' strike both Deputy Mayor East and Commissioner Mitchell said they had nothing to say until they received official intimation from the ratepayers' meeting of the resolutions passed.

The first installment of work to be undertaken under the loan has been advertised, stated Commissioner Mitchell, and protests against proceeding with these improvements will be heard at council meeting Monday evening.

STRANGE ACTS OF PILOT ARE NEW PUZZLE

of Dorbandt's mysterious actions, reported his encounter with the flier.

ARRIVED ANGRY

Dorbandt, who faces both smuggling and affiliation charges here and at Seattle, was angry on his arrival here Monday when he was ordered detained by Airplane Inspector Hall, because of alleged irregularities in the load and equipment of his plane.

He had just arrived on a projected flight from Whitehorse with Charles D. Brower and his party.

The fears of friends that Dorbandt had had suicidal intentions when he left here, because of his strange statements, were set at rest by friends of Pilot Sassen's encounter with him.

DRAMATIC TRIPS

Dorbandt was the central figure in several dramatic aeroplane flights of the north. He rushed serums and anti-toxins to Indians and Eskimos stricken with various diseases, and took injured white men to hospitals.

He landed Father Bernard Hubbard, the "glacier priest," inside the smoking volcano of Aniakchak, and was one of the leaders in aerodrome searches for lost aviators and sailors.

Recently the United States government arrested him on smuggling furs into the United States, and in Seattle he failed to appear Aug. 16 to answer charges of having their Seller, pretty 19-year-old girl, who charged the flier was the father of her 17-months-old child, Patricia. This case was continued until September 12.

The purpose of the convention is to provide an opportunity for head office officials to discuss various matters of mutual interest with agents.

Reports at the convention showed the company to be definitely on the up grade, conditions having improved considerably during the past few years.

Among those attending the convention are: Dr. C. M. Vanstone, general manager; H. E. Hemmons, assistant manager; Lester Ben Peterson; inspector J. L. Williams; C. Nairn, company adjuster and F. E. Irwin, inspector.

The company is holding conventions in the six principal cities in Western Canada, and the next meet will take place in Calgary, commencing Thursday.

WEALTH TAKEN FROM REIFELS TO WAIT CASE

Property, Money of Canadian Liquor Men Tied Up at Seattle

SEATTLE, Aug. 21.—While the $100,000 bond of Henry Reifel, Sr., Vancouver, B.C., distillery magnate, was being forfeited Monday, federal officials announced that the government had tied up under court writs approximately $1,250,000 worth of property belonging to Reifel and others being sued for alleged huge liquor smuggling operations.

Sam E. Whitaker, special assistant U.S. attorney general, said the largest item consisted of stock in the Hemrich Brewing Company. In the government's civil action against the defendants it seeks to collect $17,250,000 in customs duties, penalties, and internal revenue taxes on liquor asserted to have been smuggled into this country, prior to prohibition repeal.

"I estimate the value of the stock at about one million dollars," Whitaker said.

LIQUOR AND CASH

The remainder of the property consists of liquor and cash, most of it belonging to the British Columbia Distillery Company, Ltd., one of the other defendants in the action, he added.

Included in the list is $52,000 worth of liquor now held by the state liquor board, which had been bought in legal transactions recently and $4,172 which the board has certified it owed the company. The rest is made up of assets held by Seattle banks and other institutions. The government took steps to attach the property so that it may be levied upon, in event of a favorable judgment.

The bond forfeiture Monday was ordered by federal Judge Jeremiah Neterer, when Reifel failed to appear for arraignment on federal grand jury indictments returned a month ago, charging he and his son with conspiracy to smuggle the liquor into this country.

NO PROTEST

The defense, represented by attorney Don G. Eggerman, made no protest over the forfeiture. The bonds were posted by the American Bonding Company, of Baltimore. The government immediately took the first legal steps to collect the amount of the bond.

Two weeks ago, the $100,000 bond of George Reifel, his son, was also forfeited. The offenses are non-extraditable, but the two are subject to arrest when they step on United States soil again.

Eggerman denied reports that the elder Reifel plans to move to Germany.

CITY RELIEF HEADS AGAIN UNDER FIRE

Labor Council Scores Action in Cutting Families Off Relief

Recent action of city relief officials in cutting families off relief in cases where casual earnings had been spent on household necessities, with the understanding that status on the relief rolls would not be affected, was subjected to heavy fire by the Edmonton Trades and Labor council, at a meeting Monday night.

Rulings that outside earnings could only be used for regular subsistence expenses, on the relief scale, were news to the council, who replied to write to H. F. McKay, city relief commissioner and Walter Smitten, provincial labor commissioner, to ascertain the origin of this regulation.

McKEE CRITICISED

Heavy criticism of Mr. McKee on this matter was brought about by a statement by P. Griffin that men who had earned from $10 to $25 during the exhibition and had purchased such items as dishes, utensils and bread, then reported they had been cut off for two to three weeks, despite the fact that they had showed the receipts as evidence of proper expenditure of the money.

A note of fun was injected into the meeting when Sidney Bowcott, delegate from the plumbers' section, brought forward the case of H. Jamieson, whose death occurred last Thursday. Jamieson had fared a similar situation, declared Mr. Bowcott said, and he believed that his death had been partially due to despair and worry.

"The doctor's verdict was heart trouble," Mr. Bowcott said, "but I won, I think I know what brought it on."

Charges that such procedure discouraged men from seeking work to better the condition of their families by obtaining such casual necessities as were not provided for in relief were laid by Carl Berg, chairman of the council, who termed it "it placed a premium on idleness."

Secretary A. F. Furmilo stated that this regulation had not been a recommendation of the advisory committee on relief.

SIMILAR CASE

Ald. Rice Sheppard, who attended the meeting, instanced a similar case and said he hoped the body would make its objection known. Asked if Mr. McKee had the power to make and enforce rulings without the knowledge of the council, Mr. Sheppard replied that "Many of these things are a surprise to council."

Mr. Parmilo told the meeting that, to his knowledge, no change, or change in the provincial ruling which permitted spending of casual earnings for household furnishing and other necessities not provided for in relief allowances, without question.

Mr. Berg, who is also a member of the exhibition board, stated that the action in question was one that had worked during the fair off relief placed such bodies in the position that it was no use trying to work to unemployed and it did not better their condition.

Stating the case of Jamieson, Mr. Bowcott said that he had used earnings of $84 in June and July in order to pay some of his debts, then, finding himself cut off relief, had applied to him him to intercede with relief authorities.

Mr. Bowcott said that although he had never before criticized Mr. McKee, he felt from his reception that the position of relief commissioner should be filled by a man with a little more charity.

PAID SMALL AMOUNT

After referring the matter back, for further information, Messrs. McKee and Smitten, the man had been paid a small amount for relief, with no promise of more until October. Mr. Bowcott had intended to see further about the matter, he stated, but Mr. Jamieson had been confined dead in bed on Friday.

"It has been a principle of relief in this province that the initiative rests with the municipality," Elmer E. Roper, printing trades delegate, said. "But people in homes have to suffer while 'two-by-four' officials worry about whether this government or that government is responsible."

A protest by the carpenters' local 1525 against married men being taken away from their homes to work on road projects was referred to the executive for consideration. Another protest against men on public works projects being cut off each month when they have earned an amount equal to the regular relief allowance was also sent for consideration to the executive. It was stated that men required a greater food allowance when working than when idle.

Protests were registered against rates of wages drawn up by F. E. Harrison, Dominion fair wage officer, for government work, as being lower than those in effect under present agreements in this city.

TERROR ACTS FEARED WORK OF WEAK MIND

Patient in Regina Hospital Found Victim of Ground Glass

REGINA, Aug. 21.—The work of an unbalanced mind is seen behind a number of mysterious attacks on residents of the Punnichy district, most recent of which, by means of ground glass with sugar, sent Mike Biro, 17-year-old farm hand, to Regina General hospital.

Biro, employed on the farm of Martin Frank, Punnichy district farmer, was given treatment in hospital in the city Saturday for glass poisoning. He was kept in hospital overnight and allowed to go Sunday.

The glass, a pulverized lamp globe, was mixed in the sugar of which Biro took a small quantity.

Suspicion points to the work of an unbalanced mind in the district for the attack is on a par with a number of recent happenings. These include knocking on doors and fires in hay stacks distributed throughout the area around Punnichy.

The R.C.M.P. detachment at Punnichy is conducting investigations.

MANCHUKUO TO HAVE COLLEGE

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Aug. 21.—The proposed limiting of enrolment of the higher government schools in Japan to students residing in Japan only, has brought the educational authorities of Manchukuo face to face with the problem of providing university education for those students who, heretofore, have always gone to Japan to continue their studies.

Last year a total of 1,602 students from Manchuria were enrolled in Japanese colleges and universities and the expenses of their maintenance has been estimated at 1,550,000 yen (about $515,000). The Manchukuo authorities plan to build, staff and equip a first-class university which will provide education facilities equal to those supplied in Japan, but at considerably less financial and educational expense to the students.

MISSING MAN FOUND DEAD

VICTORIA, Aug. 21.—After a week's search, Steve Zadorozny was found shot dead Monday in a berry patch not far from the homestead cabin of Philip Ivanovitch in the Fireswood district near Prince George, B.C. where Ivanovitch allegedly took his own life on Saturday, it was reported to British Columbia Provincial Police headquarters here.

Police said Zadorozny had been shot with a bullet of the same calibre as that which killed Ivanovitch. Zadorozny had been missing since Sunday, Aug. 12, and on Thursday Ivanovitch participated in a search for him. Later he was found dead in his cabin.

Police believe it was a case of murder and suicide.

Money and Credit And Its Management

By G. G. McGEER, K.C., M.L.A.

This is another instalment of "Money and Credit and Its Management," an address delivered by G. G. McGeer, K.C., M.L.A., one of Canada's foremost monetary reformists, before the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association. It started in the Bulletin on Saturday, August 18, and will be printed in daily instalments in its entirety. Read it. Discuss it, and if you have missed past instalments write in to the Circulation Department of the Edmonton Bulletin for back copies.

You may agree or disagree with Mr. McGeer's views, but you will agree that his study of the monetary question is serious, and that his efforts to reform is a sincere public service.—EDITOR.

Another great popular error that decorates the facade of illusion behind which the credit dealer carries on his highly profitable activity is that bankers accumulate the deposits of individuals and loan those deposits as trustees for the depositors. To accept that as all inclusive of the manner in which bank credit is created and loaned would be to accept something as a fact that could not be further from the truth.

One hundred years ago the credit dealer's G. G. McGeer activities were just commencing. Up to that time the money lender and money changer dealt in real money. With the development of the theory of the gold standard and the issue of bank money, viz., bank notes, the practice of using credit began to fasten itself upon our social system. The bankers of Scotland concluded that $40.00 of gold was sufficient to support $100.00 in bank money, i.e., bank notes. The result of this use of credit was extremely beneficial to the money lender. He acquired $40.00 worth of gold; he was able then to issue $100.00 in bank notes. In short, the miner who went out into the hills and took out $40.00 worth of gold took it to his banker and secured $40.00 for it. The banker, under the gold standard theory, as interpreted by banking practice, was then permitted to issue a further $60.00 of money for his own use; in other words, the gold was worth $40.00 to the miner and $60.00 to the banker.

The gold standard money system was originally devised to permit the money lender to use a margin of credit as a substitute for money over and above the amount of gold he acquired. That is the origin of the gold reserve money system. It permitted the banker to issue bank notes in the form of promises to pay in gold—gold to an amount which he, the banker, did not possess. When the Bank Act of Great Britain was passed in 1844, the application of the theory of the gold standard was fundamentally changed. Up until then the gold standard theory had been used to increase the power of the bankers to create and use paper money in the form of bank notes as a substitute for metal money. The Bank Act, however, employed gold as a means of restricting the power of government to issue legal tender money. By maintaining a policy that compels the issue of legal tender money to be restricted to the volume of gold that the central bank can secure possession of is bound to create a shortage of money, the only purpose it has served. The Macmillan Committee point out:

"In the modern world gold plays, in the main, only an indirect role in the determination of the level of prices, because the circulating medium consists overwhelmingly of paper money and bank money."

GOLD NO LONGER CONTROLS

Gold has ceased to play the part as a governing factor in the control of prices and regulation of credit that it played in 1844. The ever increasing demand for more money is evidenced by the fact that in 1844 the Bank of England was permitted to issue, without gold, bank notes to the value of 14 million pounds. In 1914 the Act was suspended and the power to issue notes was exercised as a part of the war programme. Had the Act not been suspended the amount the Bank of England could have issued in 1923 was 19 million thousand pounds. In 1928 this amount was increased to 260 million pounds by Parliament, and in 1931 the Macmillan Committee recommended that the amount be increased to 400 million pounds, a portion of which recommendation has already been adopted by the British government.

The present crisis throughout the world involves the collapse of the bank credit money system and is the inevitable culmination of the influence of the money lender's false theories of economy embodied in the Act of 1844 and imposed by the credit dealer upon civilization during the last century. It is another case of a monopoly being created by governmental authority rising to destroy both itself and the power of government that created it.

Captain W. Adams, in his book, "Real Wealth and Financial Poverty," summarizes the situation in this language:

"Now, however, when Great Britain has been forced to the brink of ruin by an effort to honour the gold standard set up by that Act, it is legitimate (and the part of wisdom) to question its value."

The Bank Act of Great Britain, however, did not apply the theory of the gold standard to the creation of the bankers' substitute for money, viz., bank credit transferred by cheque, and it is the development of the bank credit substitute for money system that has now engulfed the whole of civilization in bankruptcy under a load of interest-bearing debt that cannot be successfully carried by the wealth-producing activities of this civilization.

FAILURE TO REALIZE FACTS

In the management of money we have moved from the economy of metallic money to the economy of paper currency and on to the economy of bank credit. We have failed to recognize the basic principle of the economy of credit with the economy of plenty is essential to the successful operation of a credit and plenty age. We have failed to recognize that man cannot compete with a machine and enjoy the standard of living available unless that will permit the man who formerly lived by drudgery to live and enjoy the leisure and happiness which human intelligence makes possible. We have failed to appreciate that society must be just as generous in the matter of distribution of purchasing power as the intelligent application of science has been in the elimination of drudgery in human effort. As a result, we have surrounded our productive and distributive machinery with a desert of unemployment. Intelligence has become a curse instead of a blessing. Science has released mankind from the slavery of drudgery, but the credit dealer's money system has established unemployment as an enslaving power whose calamitous consequences are even more disastrous than was the drudgery of old.

In the last century we have learned a great deal of the value of credit and the possibility of using it as a substitute for money. Unfortunately, we have allowed the money lender and credit dealer to nullify this advantage by his utilization of credit as a substitute for interest-earning money. Although there is only 16 billion dollars worth of money in the world, by credit dealers have managed to accumulate something in the vicinity of 450 billion dollars worth of interest-bearing debts. If we ask ourselves the question how the money lender during the past decade could lend to governments for the purpose of financing the destructive activities of war more than ten times as much money as existed in 1914, or if we ask ourselves how our banking system in Canada is able to lend roughly 2 billion 500 million dollars in a country whose total volume of legal tender money, bank note money and coinage is less than 350 million dollars, we find the answer when we understand the means by which the banker creates the modern substitute for money, viz., credit. The money lender of this age does not lend money, he lends credit.

The Macmillan Committee summed up the method in which bank credit is created by loaning and loaned in a concise and positive statement. The report declares:

"Since the bankers as a whole under modern conditions only maintain a cash proportion of deposits of roughly 10 per cent, they are in fact able to lend and create deposits by some ten times the cash created by the Bank of England."

BANK CREDIT ON 10 PER CENT RESERVE.

To some of you, the statement that bank credit as a substitute for money is created and maintained upon a reserve of 10 per cent of legal tender may be startling practice may come as a somewhat startling declaration. I think probably the first authentic explanation of that statement is contained in the Macmillan Committee's report. It will be found in Section 74. It reads:

"It is not unnatural to think of the deposits of a bank as being created by the public through the deposit of cash representing either savings or amounts which are not for the time being required to meet expenditures. But the bulk of deposits arise out of the actions of the banks themselves, for by granting loans, allowing money to be drawn on an overdraft or purchasing securities a bank creates a credit in its books, which is the equivalent of a deposit. A simple illustration, in which it will be convenient to assume that all banking is concentrated in one bank, will make this clear. Let us suppose that a customer has paid into the bank £1,000 in cash, and that it is judged from experience that only the equivalent of 10 per cent of the bank deposit need be held actually in cash by means of the demands of the customers; then the £1,000 cash received will obviously support deposits amounting to £10,000. Suppose that the bank then grants a loan of £900; it will open a deposit account for the customer, and when the customer draws a cheque for £900 upon the deposit so created that cheque will on our hypothesis, be paid into the account of another of the bank's customers. The bank now holds both the original deposit of £1,000 and the £900 paid in by the second customer, and can thus increased to £1,900 and the bank holds against its liability to repay on demand the original £1,000 of cash deposits and (b) the obligation of a customer to repay the loan of £900. The same result follows if the bank, instead of lending £900 to a customer, purchases an investment of that amount. The cheque which it draws upon itself in payment for the investment is paid into the seller's bank account and creates a deposit of that amount in his name. The bank in the latter case, holds

Toronto Craft Loses in Race With Rochester, N.Y., Defender

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Aug. 21.—In a surging sea kicked up by a 25 to 30-mile-an-hour near-gale that tested both eight-metre yachts and their crews to the utmost, the Conewago of the Rochester Yacht club outsailed the Invader II of the Royal Canadian Yacht club of Toronto Monday and captured by a two-minute and 27-second margin the first in the series of races for the permit to Canada's annual cup, a trophy of international fresh water yacht racing.

Manoeuvring skillfully Skipper Wilmot V. "Rooney" Castle of the United States Defender slipped across the line first and was never headed.

Both yachts reversed the "dope" based on the 1932 series, in which the Conewago had the worst of it in heavy weather and outsailed her challenger in light, variable winds to win the series three out of four races.

Sample Of Wheat From Tutankhamen Tomb Grown Here

A sample of wheat grown from seed that came out of the tomb of King Tutankhamen was brought into the Bulletin office by Walter Thompson of 137 street and 106-107 avenue, Monday. Six years ago a friend of Mr. Thompson's gave him a sample of the wheat which in turn had been given to him by an English peer that was present when the tomb was opened.

The wheat was planted for the first time by Mr. Thompson a year ago last April. The yield was one bushel from the sample. The bushel was planted this spring and now it covers an acre of land at Mr. Thompson's residence. It will yield between 60 and 70 bushels, it is estimated.

Anyone caring to see the wheat may do so by driving out to Mr. Thompson's residence as it is not yet cut owing to the fact that it is later ripening than the usual Alberta grades of wheat.

against its total liability for £1,900 (a) the original £1,000 of cash and (b) the investment which it has purchased. The bank can carry on the process of lending, or purchasing investments, until such time as the credits created, or investments purchased, represent nine times the amount of the original deposit of £1,000 in cash."

MACMILLAN COMMITTEE EXPLAINS HOW

The committee then go on to state:

"The process is much the same when we remove the assumption that there is only one bank. The credit granted by one bank may reach the accounts of customers in another bank. There is thus established a claim by the second bank upon the first for cash and the ability of the second bank to grant loans is improved insofar as that of the first bank is reduced."

But the Clearing House, which is maintained and operated by the banking system, takes care of that situation, if, however, one bank, by virtue of its advance of credit, incurs money liabilities to other banks which endanger its cash reserve of 10 per cent, it calls in its securities and secures either from the bank of issue of money, or from the bank of the nation's gold reserve, the Federal Reserve banks in the United States, the central banks of the countries of Europe or the Treasury Board of Canada, whatever securities are necessary to secure the cash required. The cash now supplied by the Dominion of Canada is maintained at the current rate, whatever it is —now 3 to 6½ per cent—not a bad privilege.

Carl Snyder, of the Federal Reserve Bank, sheds this further enlightening bit of information:

"Bank credit is created whenever a bank increases its loans or investments; and this is added to a credit fund that turns over on the average possibly about twenty times a year. The varying rates of turnover of bank deposits in Wall Street, in the larger cities, in small cities, in county banks, describe, as Dr. Burgess neatly puts it, a descending curve from near to zero to almost unbelievable velocities, possibly four or five hundred times a year."

FRANCE FEARS 1914 THREATS IN NAZI VOTE

Germans on March, Discontent Growing, Paris Commentators Assert

PARIS, Aug. 21.—A setback in Chancellor Hitler's hope to "dazzle foreign powers" by showing that all Germany was backing him, was seen by French leaders Monday in the results of the German plebiscite.

Hitler's "menace to Europe" nevertheless is unabated, said quarters close to the government, since he remains master of Germany with increasing dependence on the genuine support."

SIGNIFICANT

The 10 per cent opposition to Hitler expressed in the plebiscite was regarded here as indicating a stronger undercurrent of discontent.

That "Pan-Germanism is in arms and on the march," is shown by the vote, Henry Berenger, chairman of the senate foreign affairs committee, wrote for the Agence Economique Et Financiere. "The duel henceforth is begun in Danubian lands between Pan-Germanism and the existence of other nationalities and civilizations. It is the pre-1914 menace which I recommencing."

NOT FINISHED

The French press generally proclaimed the "duty of maintaining a strong force to assure peace" and declared that despite signs of weakening" the Hitler regime is "not finished."

FIRES STILL RAGE IN EAST

Encouraged by a brief burst of rain, w-aried residents of two Nova Scotia counties early Tuesday renewed their efforts to gain control of forest fires that still raged through woodlands after a week-end of relentless heat.

Flames still crackled through the hills of Antigonish and Pictou counties. But the danger that had threatened the existence of communities in both counties had lifted —temporarily, at least—and the firefighters looked forward with renewed hope to holding the fires in check.

In Pictou county communities were saved as outbreaks sweeping around the outskirts of eight villages died down under the lashing rain. Volunteer firefighters still worked, however, trucks laden with hose, bringing them water supplies.

TROCHU FARMERS THRESH MONDAY

TROCHU, Aug. 21.—With cutting of wheat progressing rapidly throughout the district, two farmers, J. Haller and L. Bonjoli, started threshing yesterday. This will make some of the first fall wheat about two weeks earlier than usual.

The average yield cannot be definitely ascertained but many believe it will be nearly 25 bushels to the acre. Summerfallow crops generally will give a good yield but will be a little later than others.

The frost last night presents a big problem as pastures have dried up. Green feed has made little progress and is in danger of heading out at about six inches.

In the lighter crops there is no moisture in the stems and many fear that the kernels will shrink as they ripen. A light three-hour rain Friday is expected to help grain not already cut to fill and to aid green feed. Some frost damage is reported on low land.

AVOID THIS WELL-MEANT FOLLY

Small wonder that the merchants and manufacturers of Alberta are concerned lest the Provincial Government should make the fatal mistake of bringing into effect a merchandising code in this province before it first takes steps to improve the purchasing ability of the buying public—principally farmers.

No one questions the good intentions of those seeking codes in Alberta similar to those set in effect by President Roosevelt in United States. But the position of a Canadian province is different from that of a federal union like United States.

To insist that each Alberta merchant, under penalty of the law, exact certain minimum profit percentages, refrain from "bargain days" and limit himself to four clearance sales a year, would only mean handing over a still greater proportion of our merchandising business to mail order concerns doing business outside the province. Our people have not the means to meet such additions to retail prices as a code would entail.

Under the B.N.A. Act the individual provinces have no jurisdiction over inter-provincial trade, and the federal premier has studiously avoided bringing into effect any merchandising code applicable to the whole of Canada. Too much ready money already goes out of the province to mail order houses in other provinces, without the provincial government taking steps by the introduction of a retail merchandising code to swell the exodus of purchasing power.

THE "YEAR'S RESIDENCE" RULE

The Alberta relief commission announces that under the new arrangement with the federal authority only those single men who have lived in this province for a year will be eligible for relief. The object, of course, is to discourage "drifting"; with which object the taxpayers of the province must sympathize. They have burden enough, without undertaking to support large numbers of men who may come here hoping against hope to find work.

But supposing all the provinces clap down similar restrictions—what is to happen to the thousands of single men who are now living in provinces where they have not resided for a year? The Dominion Government forbids them to "ride the rods," and they haven't money for railway fares. Are they to go hungry while they walk back home—only to find when they get there that they are not eligible for relief because they have been elsewhere during part of the year?

Quite obviously, this is a ruling which will have to be administered with common sense and a regard for facts. Under or no rules, the people of Alberta will not stand for any such "hard boiled" attitude as would leave men hungry because they made the mistake of moving from one province to another some time during the last year, thinking that some place there must be a chance for them to earn a living.

THE WRECKERS AT WORK

In defiance of its announced policy of public ownership, of business prudence and of the present and future welfare of the rural population, the Government of Alberta is engaged in wrecking the publicly owned rural telephone system and in handing over to private ownership at junk prices dismembered portions of the once-prosperous system.

If a group of St. James Street magnates were to capture the Parliament Buildings and proceed to wreck the public utilities of the province and hand them out piecemeal to private owners, there'd be riots in Alberta and calls for federal disallowance. Is it any the less alarming because this wrecking of the publicly owned rural telephone system is being done by men who are sworn to the policy of "the nationalization of all the means of communication" rather than by men honestly opposed to public ownership?

Not so long ago Hon. Mr. Brownlee was said to have received a tentative offer of $2,000,000 for the Alberta Government Telephone System —and to have refused to consider it. Now, the rural portion of the system is being allowed to rot and decay, becoming a menace to life and limb, while isolated sections are being sold at junk prices to private users.

It isn't enough to say that times are hard. They've been hard for other telephone concerns, both publicly and privately owned. When times are hard executives have to use their wits and ingenuity to keep properties intact and safeguard the interest of shareholders.

Though the Alberta Government Telephone System has been burdened, without doubt, by thousands of costly and unprofitable telephone connections made for political supporters for other than commercial reasons, this does not justify the action of the Government in throwing overboard the assets of the rural telephone system, and leaving the public of Alberta to pay the bonded indebtedness on the properties they have sabotaged and junked.

All this abandonment and wrecking of the rural telephone system has been done without any authority of the Legislature—without the placid and pliant public-ownership supporters in the Legislature being even consulted by the Ministers. Not one among the faithful flock has dared to sound a defiant "Baa—" against this spoliation, taking place under their noses but without their consent being asked.

Some day, some more capable government will have to face the task of building up again on sound business lines, the rural telephone system that the present Government, having first abused, for political ends, then abandoned is now seeking to bury out of sight. This dissimilated myriad of privately-owned junk lines is the one monument the present Government will leave behind it.

"Oh, Public Ownership! What sins have been committed in thy name in the province of Alberta!"

Well may people pray Heaven to hasten the day when those responsible for junking the once-splendid telephone system of the province may pass to oblivion, and the task of building up sound public utilities begin again.

RESIGNATION

Why, why repine, my pensive friend,
At pleasures slipped away?
Some the stern Fates will never lend,
And all refuse to stay.

I see the rainbow in the sky,
The dew upon the grass;
I see them, and I ask not why
They glimmer or they pass.

With folded arms I linger not
To call them back; 'twere vain:
In this, or in some other spot,
I know they'll shine again.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Don't you abhor those generous folk who will insist on putting food on your plate when you've had enough, and who insist on filling up your glass against your protests. Gilroy Moore will never be guilty of such bad taste.

J. S. Cowper

Gilroy Moore is an executive of the Army and Navy Veterans Club at Vancouver. He has served in Central Africa and is on his way to make his mark as a short story writer. He has some skill as an amateur wood carver.

Gil' wanted a piece of Irish bog oak to carve into a picture frame, but search as he would, he couldn't find any in western Canada. The real Irish bog oak, heavy and hard and smooth, pickled a rich dark green, can only be had from the Emerald Isle. Someone gave him the name of the parish priest at Ardee in County Louth and suggested that Gil' prosecute his enquiries through him.

Father Lyons wrote back. Sure and he'd be glad to have one of his flock hunt up some bog oak for the Canadian gentleman. But it was hard work and perhaps the enquirer would feel like sending a couple of pounds to reward the man who'd do the digging.

Being himself afflicted with the vice of generosity, Gil' sent $15—which is nearer three pounds than two.

There was a hitch in the carrying out of the contract. A discreet letter came from the reverend father enquiring if by any chance the gentleman was connected with the Moores of Bally Beg.

"I am sorry to say I cannot claim any relationship with the Moores of Bally Beg; my people are connected with the Moores of New Town," replied Gil'.

Explanation came. It appeared that the good folk of Ardee are not on speaking or trading terms with the Moores of Bally Beg, but they have the highest respect for the Moores of New Town. In view of the generosity of the gentleman from Canada and his connection with the Moores of New Town, Gil' was assured he would be given generous treatment.

And was he? Yesterday he received a notification from the C.P.R. that the shipment will arrive in two or three days. The bill of lading describes it as a shipment of "ten pieces of bog oak. Weight one ton."

The freight bill from Ardee to Dundalk, steamer from Dundalk to Liverpool, steamer from Liverpool to Montreal and rail from Montreal to Vancouver came to $75. You can't beat the Irish when it comes to generosity to those they love.

"I don't know what would have happened to me if I'd been one of the Moores of Bally Beg," sighs Gil'.

My guess is they'd have shipped the consignment express as token of regard.

Some time ago I wrote a series of articles drawing attention to the reduced price given at Liverpool for Vancouver shipped wheat as compared with equal grades shipped by Atlantic ports. The grades are statutory and are the same at Vancouver as at Montreal. In view of the way Alberta grain sweeps the price lists at the Vancouver terminals, it seemed worth looking into. The circumstance was all the more peculiar since the Secretary of the Grain Exporters Exchange at Vancouver sent an explanation that didn't apply. He blamed it on the presence of Garnet in Pacific shipped grain. Yet the Canada Grain Act prohibits the admixture of Garnet in No. 1 Northern and No. 1 hard—two of the grades in which at the time of writing there was a three cent discrimination against Vancouver grain of equal grade. No explanation that fits the facts has ever been forthcoming, though since the protest there has been a reduced discrimination, indicating that the quality of the Vancouver-shipped grain has been nearer to that of Atlantic-shipped grain.

Now the grain trade at the coast has stopped giving the press the price comparison between Vancouver-shipped and Atlantic-shipped grain, although shipments are still being made from the Atlantic ports.

Wonder if that has any significance, and if so, what?

Kidnapping has reared its ugly head in Canada. A wealthy Ontario brewer was kidnapped from his car and demand made for $150,000 ransom. Three men have been committed at Toronto on a charge of conspiring to kidnap J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers. One of the witnesses said that the gang had laid plans to kidnap Lady Flavelle, but were deprived of their victim through the death of the lady before they could secure her.

There is no more abhorrent crime than kidnapping—trading on the fears of the victim and the tender emotions of his kin. Murder or torture is implied in the crime. Both have been involved in recent kidnappings.

Those who are empowered to administer the criminal law have a duty laid on them to use their powers of punishment to discourage this most dastardly of crimes. Equally, those who are empowered to make the civil law have a duty laid on them to use their powers to so reconstruct society that there shall no longer be hundreds of thousands of idle, thwarted, men and women in our midst suffering deprivation, while at the other end of the economic scale wealthy men holding lucrative monopolies through the taxation of their competitors, lead lives of blatant ease.

Sweat shop conditions and poverty along side of successful financial racketeering, such as described by the Minister of Trade and Customs in his suppressed pamphlet, are an incentive to kidnapping of the rich.

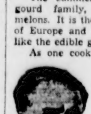

When you come to reflect upon the hopeless conditions under which the masses live, and the ease with which kidnapping enterprises can be carried out, the marvel is that we've had so little of this sort of crime in Canada.

Summer Squash

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

The summer squash is a member of the gourd family, along with cucumbers and melons. It is the same as the vegetable marrow of Europe and Canada, and is almost exactly like the edible gourds used in Spain and India.

As one cook has said, "Summer squash is mostly water — but what water!" For this reason it makes a good cleansing, cooling summer vegetable. It is a very delicious addition to the everyday diet. Summer squash may be secured in most parts of the country during the season and should be used as much as possible when available.

Dr. F. McCoy

Several varieties are used: some are scalloped, some flat, some round, some crooknecked, some yellow, some white. The taste is very agreeable, being mild and bland. The squash of this group belongs to the non-starchy vegetable class and may be combined well with either a starch meal or a protein meal.

One particular kind of little summer squash called Italian squash or Zucchini is green with stripes. Inside it is yellowish to white. It is used a great deal in Italy. These squashes may not be obtained in every market but they are finely flavored when used young and are tender and of delicate taste. Summer squash are classed with the alkaline foods.

Squash has a number of qualities to commend it to the cook. It does not cost much, and does not take long to cook. Since it cooks very quickly it does not warm up the kitchen on a summer day. It needs no long preparation as the skin meshes up easily when cooked. The seeds are left in it. It should be washed, diced, and cooked in very little water, just enough to cover it so that too much of the flavor does not cook out into the water. If carefully watched it is often possible to cook squash by cutting it up and adding no water at all, using a little butter instead. Squash cooked in this way will be sweeter and will lack that watery flavor which clings to a squash which has gone to a watery grave in the pan before it reaches the table. Most summer squash is cooked in too much water which renders it tasteless and unpalatable.

As summer squash is a non-starchy vegetable it may be combined with almost any other kind of food, and it, therefore, lends itself easily to many mixtures with other vegetables.

Summer squash is a desirable luncheon dish or may be used at the evening meal with meat. If you feel hungry, take a second helping of this vegetable and eat more of it and no more meat than taking a second helping of meat or dessert.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—Mrs. Theda R. writes: "My father has been troubled for a month with soreness in the thighs after going for a period of time. There is no soreness in the joints. What would you suggest?"

ANSWER—It is difficult to know just what is causing the soreness without being able to examine your father. This might be due to a form of lumbago, or simply defective circulation in this region. I would suggest that he take a short fruit fast and use hot sitz baths for from 15 to 20 minutes two or three times a week followed by a cold shower over the lower back and abdomen. This should improve the circulation. If the trouble remains after following this treatment for a reasonable length of time, I believe the best plan would be for him to consult a physician.

QUESTION—Mrs. Frank O. asks: "Is there any way of removing knots from first joints on my index fingers, presumably caused from hard work? They have just formed within the last six months."

ANSWER—Since the enlargement appeared only within the last six months, it is likely that there is some inflammation present, in which case these knots can be reduced; but, if due to a growth of bone, there is no feasible method of reducing them. Your trouble may be due to a form of arthritis which may exist even without much pain. My article on Arthritis may give you some helpful information.

QUESTION—M. L. asks: "What are the first signs of tuberculosis. If a person is not subject to colds or coughs, he is not so subject to it, is he?"

ANSWER—Some of the first signs are extreme weakness, afternoon temperature, and a slight cough, but in some cases the onset is quite acute, from a hard cold or grippe. Everyone should have periodic examinations made so that such diseases can be discovered in their incipient stages. One who is not subject to colds or catarrh is less likely to develop tuberculosis.

Dr. Frank McCoy's great book, "The Fast Way to Health", gives you the mechanics of health in plain easily understood language.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

August 22 might prove a very lucky day for you, especially in business matters. Care, however, should be exercised that over confidence does not make you careless.

Married and engaged couples will find tact a good quality to exercise today, as there is a possibility of grandiloquent bragging if arguments are indulged in. Indiscriminate love making may prove a dangerous sport so it might be wise not to indulge in it.

If a woman and August 22 is your natal day, you will do well to control any impulse to be too hasty in decisions, especially if it comes to passing judgment on the character of others. If you embark on the sea of matrimony, the sailing should prove smooth and conducive to happiness.

If a man and August 22 is your natal day, many are your virtues and few are your faults. You have the attributes needed for leadership. Writing, engineering, exploration, and scientific research work offer a man of your type unlimited opportunity.

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History

By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1847 the Canada Life Insurance Company began business at Hamilton. It was founded by Hugh C. Baker, afterwards manager of the first telephone exchange in Canada. He had shown his own faith in the principle of life insurance by travelling to New York to be examined for a British company, doing the journey by horse and stage coach.

The first policy was issued October 29 following. Total receipts for the first year were £2,150, with expenses of only £300 so that, as stated in the first annual report, the company was "placed in a position at its first annual meeting which is unexampled in the history of life insurance, that of having realized profits without having included the value of the risks already earned."

Baker had a difficult time preaching life insurance; people were hard to convince; "the company encountered coldness where it might have expected cordiality, lukewarmness where there should have been genial and ringing welcome where there should have been confidence."

The opposition, perhaps, the ignorance, was so deep that when the company sought incorporation from the legislature in 1849 the bill was thrown out by the legislative council, one member telling his fellow councillors that the only capital the company possessed was "assurance." Eventually, after several applications, the incorporation was procured, but only by a bare majority. One clause in the policy which made temperance a condition was perhaps a contributing factor in the opposition, for those were days of heavy drinking.

Year by year the company progressed, spreading by degrees all over Canada, to Montreal in 1853; Saint John 1856; Winnipeg in 1879 and eventually to Victoria and Vancouver. The guiding spirit in the early days was A. G. Ramsay, who had been secretary of the Scottish Amicable Assurance Company, and was eventually president of the Canada Life Control was secured by G. A. Cox, afterwards senator, who replaced Ramsay and from 1869 to 1928 a Cox sat in the presidential chair. Even yet the Cox family are predominating partners in this, the pioneer life company of Canada.

Current Comment

THE C.C.F.

Graham Spry, vice president of the C.C.F. in Ontario and candidate for the party in the coming Dominion by-election in East York, discusses the prospects of the next election in his paper, the Weekly Sun. Mr. Spry agrees that the indications are for a Liberal victory, saying:

"The Canadian voter is going to the polls this autumn, or next summer, not to vote on measures but to elect Liberal or Conservatives. It is primarily a matter of manners. The Canadian people resent, and the resentment is deep in their souls, the way delegations have been received, the sort of 'iron heel of ruthlessness' line that the government has taken, and the atmosphere of suppression and dictatorship that has been created. Even if these plans are not likely to help strangely, when voters start hating. The only questions that the next election will settle, in terms of power, are will the C.C.F. form the next official opposition or will the federal Conservative party disappear and be the way of that genial cattleman, Dr. Tolmie of B.C., or of that ill-educated Manitoban leader, T. M. Anderson, Ph.D., of Saskatchewan? With a decimated Tory party and the C.C.F. in Quebec, the Liberal party stands the best chance of forming the next government."

THE GOLD STANDARD

(A Phantasy)

Editor Bulletin: The year 1935 was a very momentous one for the planet "Earth" as with the great advance in science Professor Highflyer perfected his apparatus and machinery for reversing the law of gravity and after installing them in a suitable vehicle was prepared to make his long dreamed of trip to the planet "Mars."

All of his trials had gone off successfully and when the time came for making the all-important trip a great many volunteers proffered their services to act as a crew, as owing to the hard times on the Earth, many seemed willing to risk their lives on the hazardous adventure. The professor, accordingly had a large number to select from and he chose his crew with great care. Representation from all of the arts and crafts were included and prominent among them were to be found a miner, a farmer and a prospector while a fairly eminent banker also accompanied the party. All went well, the initial trip was a great success and when the explorers landed on Mars they found it to be inhabited. All of the people, however, bore signs of living in the direst poverty and they gave as the reason, that their land was so infertile and their crops so poor that they were only able to reap the barest sustenance for man and beast. It wasn't long before the inspector and farmer discovered the reason, as a little trip around convinced them that the earth was composed of nine-tenths gold dust and was too poor to raise a good crop.

The banker immediately saw his opportunity and took charge of the situation. Addressing the people of Mars, he said, "My friends, your troubles will soon be over. This dirt of yours which is too poor to raise a crop is esteemed of great value on the planet Earth and the people there will be willing to exchange all the necessities, comforts and luxuries of life, which you need so badly and of which they have a superabundance, for your dust, and it will be to the advantage of everybody concerned. As soon as we return we will start a "Spaceways Freight Line" between the Earth and Mars and we will ship you our goods and you shall ship us your dirt or gold dust in return.

And so it was. The people of Earth got busy and shipped large quantities of goods to the people of Mars who shipped back gold dust in return. As soon as the gold dust arrived on Earth the bankers took charge of it and melted it into ingots and buried it in their vaults because they said

A GENTLE REMINDER

A young railroad conductor and father for the first time stood in the ward of the Santa Fe hospital, and asked anxiously, "Doctor, are there any marks on my son?"

Looking the new arrival over, the doctor replied, "Yes, sir, there is. He's marked C.O.D."

Dean: "Don't you know you shouldn't play strip poker?"

Sweet Young Thing: "Oh, it's perfectly all right. It's not really gambling."

Dean: "What?"

Sweet Young Thing: "No, you see, we always get our clothes back."—Sheared.

Optician: "Weak eyes, eh? Well, how many lines can you read on that chart?"

"What chart?"—Carnegie Tech. Puppet.

Father: "That young man of yours stays very late. Doesn't he know how to say good-night?"

Daughter: "Oh yes, but better than any other boy I ever knew."—Boston Transcript.

The mistress of the house entered the dining-room just as a burglar was in the act of purloining the silver.

"What are you doing?" asked the lady.

"I'm at your service, madam," replied the thief glibly.

The World And Its Wheat

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

Quotas and agreed export limits do not mean any profit to a wheat growing country. The course of world trade during the last few years has proved to a demonstrated certainty that any country refusing to sell its products abroad except on terms of cash payment must be prepared to sell at a loss.

The buyer will only buy the smallest possible quantity; and will wait until the seller becomes desperate for cash and has to let go at a bankrupt price.

The fact is that no nation will send cash abroad to buy foodstuffs so long as its people can be fed on substitutes produced at home. Imports will be restricted to the smallest quantity which will avert starvation and revolution.

On the other hand, every nation is glad to import foodstuffs on terms of fair trade; where goods move both ways—leaving only differences in amount to be paid in cash.

With these truths staring us in the face, Canada still tries to sell for cash. Values of fixed assets in Canada have been obliterated by a deflation caused by refusing to trade with the nations of the world on the only basis on which such nations will allow a price which is profitable to Canadians.

Merchants trading in the Orient could buy the entire Canadian wheat output on a fair trade basis involving an interchange of commodities. On the cash only basis there is no trade. The people of the Orient eat wheat out of their bill of fare; and Canadian agriculture goes on a debt adjustment basis.

Unemployment in Canada today is due in entirety to our blindly obstinate refusal to sell for anything except cash; not to any lack of world trade.

World trade is not—never has been—and never will be a cash trade. Centuries ago the ships of the East India Company carried British goods to the Far East and returned with the products of the East received in payment.

Britain built up her national wealth by fair trade volume of commerce. Spain, on the other hand, destroyed her own national wealth, by a system of exploiting her colonies by imposing a one way trade.

It should not be necessary to repeat these truths at the present time; but with political leaders in power who deal in prejudices and obscurities to cover up special privileges kept intact at ruinous losses to the merchants and workers of the nation—it is necessary to explain again the elementary truths of commerce.

There is no mystery about world trade; there is no scarcity of world trade except the scarcity created by barriers of our own construction.

All that is necessary to restore the volume of commerce is to advertise to the world that purchase of Canadian commodities will give entry into Canada of an equal value in commodities of the purchasing nation on a basis of tariff charges not exceeding tariff for revenue—which is 50 per cent of our current tariffs without any dump duties or side grabs.

We can have prosperous conditions on profitable terms; but under the influence of bad political leadership we are holding on to conditions which in the words of Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce have brought us into a state where-under our only choice is between dictatorship, reform or revolution.

It was not convenient to have gold in circulation and so they issued paper money instead; which was perfectly good financing.

Immediately an era of great prosperity sprung up on both Mars and the Earth. On Mars, because now they had more of the necessities, comforts and luxuries of life than they had ever had before; and on the earth because now they had purchasers for power distributed among the producers and workers—owing to the new issue of paper money which had taken place) because of the wages, salaries and dividends paid out for the production of the goods shipped to Mars and they were able to buy more freely, although there were actually less goods on the Earth than there would have been had they kept them all instead of shipping some to Mars.

The strange thing about the whole business and something which nobody was ever able to clearly understand was the explanation of the bankers that it was perfectly sound financing to issue paper money in respect to the gold dust that was received from Mars; but it would have been disastrous "inflation" to have issued paper money in respect to the goods for which the gold dust had been received in exchange.

WAR COSTS IN BLOOD

Editor Bulletin: On August 10th, in your Mail Bag "For Peace" gives certain figures re the cost of war. Let me add to his and give the record of a few items. The war lasted 1,500 days, and every day on an average 7,000 men were killed and 14,500 injured.

Germany lost 1,900,000 men
France lost 1,500,000 men
British Empire 1,100,000 men.
Russia 2,500,000 men till the task of counting and records were finally abandoned.

There are over 1,000,000 Britain buried in foreign soil and of these half are still unidentified.

The wounded number 20,000,000. When the last shot was fired 10,000,000 were war cripples.

479,850 British officers and men drawn pensions for disabilities.

The cost of the war was £80,000,000,000.

The cost of armaments since war closed is around £20,000,000,000 (not dollars), which makes our friends figures on disability pensions look very small indeed.

I hope these petty attacks on pension will soon cease and I would say to our friend try and learn the truth.

The living has no Cenotaph,
No crosses row on row!
Scars of body, mind and soul
Are all they have to show!
Yet for them the battle flag,
Never been unfurled;
Warring men and starving men
Loveless, lost, forgotten men!
Who saved a world.

NOT TAXPAYERS BURDEN

Editor Bulletin: Will you permit me to reply to a letter signed "Teacher", in your Mail Bag in Thursday's Bulletin. Teacher says that the C.P.R. "went on relief for $60,000,000, taking the credit of the people of Canada to pay the wages of its employees."

This is unfair to all concerned as it is absolutely untrue. Teacher probably refers to a loan of $60,000,000, made by Canadian banks to the C.P.R., secured by the assets of the company and carrying a rate of interest eminently satisfactory to the banks, for whom the loan was good business. The loan was guaranteed by the government. The money was obtained for regular financing and is no burden on the taxpayer or on any other class of worker. All these facts were available to Teacher through the press at the time the loan was made, when full publicity was given to the circumstances.

A Taxpayer.

Elevators Load Cars For North

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Aug. 21

Preparing for the 1934 crop movement, Prince Albert grain elevator firms Monday were busily loading for northern shipment by Churchill. Out of 6,000,000 bushels now in store in the Prince Albert railway division it has been estimated 4,000,000 will be shipped to Churchill before fall. Fifty cars of grain are ready for immediate movement to the northern seaport.

—I with others would like to know where Mr. Shepherd gets his authority for saying, it is is not found in any of the old Greek M.S.S., consequently "spurious."

In 2nd Timothy 2: 15, Paul tells us to —"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth"; consequently Bible students should be careful in writing.

In compiling this letter I have before me the following versions of the Bible, and all are agreed, and support Mark 16: 15.—

1. English revised.
2. Moffat.
3. Weymouth.
4. Ferrar Fenton.
5. Westcott & Hort 20th century, a recognized authority.
6. Goodspeeds.
7. Concordant Pub. Co.
8. Companion Bible with notes on Greek and Hebrew.
9. American revised.
10. Aramaic Eastern version by G. M. Lamsa.

I wonder what Mr. Shepherd has to say about the scripture found in Acts 28: 3-6.

Is it spurious too?

Perhaps Luke 10: 19 is also spurious.

And perhaps for those who are looking for the truth of God's word Mr. Shepherd might be able to tell us where it is found.

NO COALITION FOR LIBERALS IS CONSIDERED

which they can grasp. What are some of the possibilities?

1. National or Union Governments on the basis that half a loaf is better than no bread.
2. Delay, in the hope that the new provincial Liberal administrations may become increasingly unpopular as time goes on.
3. Such an improvement in business conditions during the next year as will enable the government to claim it is responsible for having pulled Canada through the depression.
5. A wave of patriotic imp rial sentiment arising from the King's Jubilee and an Imperial Conference next June.
6. A big constitutional issue, raised for the occasion, in the form of proposed amendments to the B.N.A. Act.

This last looks like the best bet.

NATIONAL GOVT OUT

National Government is out for the Liberals at least. I have been informed by five quite responsible and authoritative leaders of Liberalism, federally and provincially, that no Liberal of any standing will enter a pre-election coalition.

That is only logical. There are two kinds of Liberals. There are the party men who place loyalty and team play first. They like to be on office. But they consider Liberal victory so certain that they see no sense in sharing it with the enemy.

Then there are the radical Liberals, the men who have a burning faith and a desire to put Liberal policies into practice for the benefit of the people.

Coalition with Tories is unthinkable to them because it means sacrificing Liberal principles to the supreme purpose of their being in politics at all.

There will be no Union Government.

Hon. W. D. Herridge has half converted his brother-in-law, the Prime Minister, to the idea of a reciprocity treaty with the United States. Herridge is hot for it. A distinguished Canadian who conversed with him on the subject recently, said:

"He talked with all the fanaticism of an old 1911 Laurier Grit."

LACKING IN TIME

But the manufacturers will have none of it, and their supporters are legion among the Bennett following. It is late in time to negotiate treaties with the United States, especially trade treaties. Nothing could be done in time for an election this fall.

If parliament were to meet with a message from the throne announcing legislation, well informed parliamentarians tell me Bennett would be defeated by his own party, perhaps turned out of the leadership.

Any letting down of the trade barriers to American manufactured goods is the one thing that the rank and file of Tory members would not stand for.

Reciprocity does not look like a live issue. Anyway, the Liberals would probably underwrite the policy and go him one better. If reciprocity is what Canada wants, the Liberals have a better record on the subject than the Conservatives with their "no truck and trade" talk of 1911.

Delay may bring the government some slight advantage. It is notorious that the popularity of governments begins to decline from the day they are elected. The new Liberal administrations in the four provinces that have had elections in the past year are all under fire to a certain extent.

Tory speakers would be able to say:

"You have had your Liberal governments for a year now; what have they done? They fooled you."

AFFECTED BY CONDITIONS

There is also the probability, due to the reflex from the Roosevelt policies in the United States, that business conditions will improve, and that people will be in better humor, less eager to swap governments, next year than they are now.

Unfortunately for this argument "times" are just as likely to get worse as better. If nothing is done to help them. Furthermore, the ruse of shifting responsibility for unemployment administration back to the shoulders of the provinces is too transparent to fool anybody.

The big things that need to be done in Canada to restore prosperity lie in the federal field. That new Liberal provincial administrations are tied hand and foot from carrying out their real policies by lack of federal co-operation.

The positive advantages of delay are exceedingly slim, while the disadvantages are overwhelming. When people have made up their mind that it is time for a government to get out, every hour of delay increases popular resentment. Remember what happened to Tolmie and Anderson, who hung on to the last.

PLAYED OUT IDEA

The Jubilee idea—stirring up the people's patriotic sentiments—is a played out idea. Even a jubilee has gone too often to the well. It probably would not work even in good times.

In bad times people don't think politics in terms of flag waving. The big question is "How do we eat" These are days of bread and butter politics. The starving million are not going to be fooled to vote for Bennett out of patriotic fervor.

And as to the Imperial Conference idea—well, Mr. Bennett has had two of them and it did not noticably increase his political prestige in the country.

There remains the constitutional issue. It is a high and potent card. We'll talk about that in the next article.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

A Fascinating Pastime with Albert Edward Wiggam, D.Sc., the Noted Author of The Fruit of the Family Tree

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Not all moral questions can be answered with absolute scientific accuracy, but no decision as to what is morally right is possible without science. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1.—The high probability is it will deteriorate the race since the ones who have the least foresight and think only of the bonus will be the ones who will rear larger families. The more intelligent people who often need such bonuses and in many cases should have them, have a higher regard for the child's future than merely to bring it into the world to gain a few dollars at its birth. A bonus to parents above a certain high standard of health, intelligence and character would be real statesmanship.

2.—Paul L. Harriman of Lewisburg, Pa., made a test on a large group of adult women offenders in a state industrial home both as to their intelligence and their grasp of moral problems and issues. The higher intelligence group had a much better grasp of moral problems and, as he says in reporting his study in School and Society: "Those low in intelligence were also low in a sense of guilt and desire to reform, whereas those of higher intelligence had developed a determination to change their modes of living upon release."

3.—Dr. John B. Washburne, psychologist at Syracuse University, tested this matter out with nearly 1,000 school pupils of average age thirteen, and the results of having the questions at the beginning were slightly better than having either at the end or scattered all through the text. In other words a careful preview is far better than a review since the author sets out in advance the questions he proposes to discuss in the chapter. This ought to be a strong hint to writers and publishers of books and that is the psychological reason why the questions in this feature are asked in advance of the discussion.

MARRIAGE
By Dr. Albert Edward Wiggam
With Questionnaire

A remarkable little booklet written from the scientific viewpoint. It should prove of tapt interest not only to those of marriageable age but also to parents who have a higher regard for the child's future than merely to bring it into the world to gain a few dollars at its birth. A bonus to parents above a certain high standard of health, intelligence and character would be real statesmanship.

Social - - Personal

SOME of us are born with silver spoons in our mouths, and others are seventh daughters of seventh daughters, around whose cradles the fairies stood with all good gifts. And then there are those of us who have dined with Clark Gable.

After all, we claim a hand that has shook that of the Prince of Wales, and in his famous ranch house we sat on his favorite chair and trained our eyes to look across rolling prairies and foothills at his favorite view. We know a man who has gone into the inner temple of the most sacred of Japanese shrines, and we once listened to the theatrical tones of Aimee Semple McPherson in her own Temple. Yet we must admit that all these things paled to insignificance as we talked to the girl who had sat across the table from the famous He-Man of the Talkies, and watched him shake out his napkin and place it in his lap, and take up his soup spoon!

Clark Gable

Isn't it true that the English seem to have all the luck? She was a demure and charming girl from London who had been out in Vancouver at the time of his visit, with his wife, to that Canadian city. The friend whom she was visiting had gone to school with Mrs. Gable, and a family party was arranged for the well-known pair. My English friend admitted frankly that she could neither understand or admire the Clark Gable of the screen. But the man she met who neither slapped women in the face to show his affection, or punched the noses of gentlemen he didn't happen to admire, was quite a different sort of individual. Once he was safely in from the mobs of the street, he became a perfectly ordinary, charming, exceedingly well-mannered individual. But Mrs. Gable was the truly delightful member of the family. A woman who came from a socially prominent family, who had herself attended the best schools, she was a person of some distinction. This her husband seemed to realize, and his deference was all to her. Both were quite as pleasant a pair of guests as one might meet, and Hollywood shop talk no more entered the conversation than would have talk of stocks and bonds or operations, had the gentleman been a broker or a doctor.

We did move over slightly hallowed ground when we discovered that not many weeks before we arrived in Trinidad, British West Indies, none other than Ramon Novarro had been in that delightful tropical resort, having travelled on palatial ships out of New York. He was quite a likeable young gentleman, we were told by individuals who are English enough and detached enough to still frown slightly on those who represent the land of make-believe.

Ramon Novarro

It was a little strange, we admitted, to see quaint East Indian bazaars with their full quota of Ghandish-looking gentlemen; little colored children running around as nature made them; houses resting on stilts and an unreal crystal ball of a moon hanging low in its network of stars over a line of tall palm trees that looked seaward . . . and then to turn suddenly and discover a blatant poster on which the charms of Joan Crawford or Mae West were set forth in true American style!

Some of the theatres are held, like the cabaret and dances, in the open air. How those who attend can keep their minds on the performance, with the whole world about filled with color and charm and loveliness beyond farthest dreams of the prop-makers of Hollywood, was more than we could understand.

Going to the talkies in the West Indies is quite a ceremonious affair, however. There are two shows a day—one at three and one at eight, and woe betide the individual who stumbles in through the darkness, across the feet of some interested early-comer. It is all done with ceremony and distinction, and frequently parties are made up for dinner and the theatre, with the "dress circle" very much in evidence.

We think it might not be too much to suggest that Mae West, with all her voluptuousness, could take more than a few lessons from some of the beautiful dusky maidens of the Carribean, whose olive-tinted skins and dark wavy hair, great brown eyes and white teeth are only a measure of their good looks. Carrying everything from a water-casket to a bushel of potatoes on their heads from childhood has given these girls a bearing that princesses might envy.—L.C.D.

Mr. Henry E. Spencer, M.P., who is a member of the Federal Finance Commission, was an honored guest and speaker at a banquet given recently by the Paradise Valley Women's Institute. Sixty members and guests were seated at tables beautifully decorated in white and silver, the Institute colors, even the place cards were decorated with cornflowers and tied with silver ribbon, carrying out the color scheme. Mrs. W. A. Brown, director district No. 2 A.W.I., acted as chairman and toastmistress and proposed the toast to "The King", which was followed by "Our Country", proposed by Mr. Tuttle; response, "O Canada!" "The Homes of Canada"; response, "Home Sweet Home". "Our Menfolk"; response, "Robin Adair".

Mr. Spencer gave an interesting and instructive address in which he dealt particularly with Banking and the Central Bank. Miss Major, who was guest soloist of the evening, contributed two delightful numbers and Mrs. Spencer spoke briefly in greeting. Thanks were tendered both speaker and soloist by Mrs. W. S. Murray, constituency convener.

An interesting demonstration in cheese-making was given not long ago and at the last meeting the demonstration cheese was cut and a generous wedge of it given to each member to carry home.

Donalda: The Women's Institute is having a concrete arch built at the entrance to the local cemetery and when completed the name will be placed above it adding greatly to the appearance. A man has also been employed to clear weeds and grass from the walks and borders.

Delightful travel talks were given at the meeting by Mrs. Van Blarcom, who described a trip to the Island of Trinidad and Mrs. E. A. Oatway, who told of one to Bermuda. The first speaker had a fine collection of curios which added interestingly to her talk. A Mother's Bundle is being prepared. A picnic has been a recent event and about one hundred adults and children enjoyed the games and water sports. Prizes were given for the various contests and the afternoon was very much enjoyed. Mrs. F. Erickson was the official delegate to the Horticultural Field Day held at the Lacombe Experimental Farm and Mrs. B. A. Vikse was the official delegate to the constituency conference which was held at Round Hill on August 21.

...on: A short paper on Canadianization was read by Mrs. Hess and a very successful baby clinic was reported to have been held recently. The roll call was answered by giving "my oldest possession, in constant use," and brought forth many interesting answers.

Brooksley: An organ has been purchased for use in the school and later the members hope to purchase a piano. Miss Anne Caulker was the speaker at the meeting and gave a splendid paper on education dealing with various phases of it. Selections on the bag pipes were given by Mr. George Reid of Edmonton, pleasantly enlivening the occasion.

Cherhill: Thirty-one pre-school age children were examined by Miss Anderson at the recent baby clinic held under the auspices of the W.I. and a dance has also been successfully given. A sewing course is being arranged for September.

Pine Creek: The importance of training girls in household economics was a subject dealt with by Mrs. L. Fowler at the last meeting and was followed by a delightful programme of music arranged by Mrs. R. Clarke and Mrs. L. Phillips. The drawing of the lucky ticket for the rug being raffled was made by Master Neil Brown, ticket No. 261 held by Mrs. Stevens, 73111 105A St., Edmonton, being the lucky one. Mrs. Elsey, a charter member of the branch was a guest and cordially welcomed by the members upon her return from eastern Canada.

Angus Ridge: Mrs. Doupe, Mrs. Rix and Mrs. Harry Grant received high marks for the examination they wrote upon the Household Economics correspondence course and the W. I. has been awarded a certificate of merit in recognition of their success. "The Peoples of Alberta" was the subject of a fine paper on Canadianization given at the meeting by Mrs. Bye, in which she stressed the need for taking a kindly interest in the people from other lands who reside here.

Business Secretary-Treasurer Resigns: Mrs. J. Regan, 9732 110 street, who for several years has been the business secretary-treasurer, has resigned and until further notice all communications and monies should be sent to Mrs. J. P. Ferguson, provincial president, Trochu, Alberta.

FLATTER WIFE TO KEEP HER HAPPY

DEAR MISS DIX—I am planning on being married soon and it is my ambition to make my fiancee the happiest wife in the world. Can you suggest the 10 best rules to follow in order that I may do so? BILL.

Answer:

Dorothy Dix

Well, Bill, any man can make his wife happy if he wants to and if he deliberately sets out to do so. The trouble with most men is that they think that just being married to them is all that any woman could possibly desire in the world and that when they have put a ring on a girl's finger they have done all that she has a right to expect of them. They think that any wife can sit up and get all the kick out of life she wants by just gazing on her marriage certificate.

Which isn't the case, of course. Marriage can get mighty dull and monotonous in the course of 25 or 30 years if the husband doesn't do anything to pep it up for his wife. And so if a husband wants to keep his wife thinking herself the luckiest woman in the world he should do something about it. And here are the 10 rules that I should suggest for him to follow:

First. Keep up the line by which he won her. Don't drop all courtship at the altar. Before marriage a woman had many men tell her how beautiful she was. After marriage she has only one, so it is up to him to keep busy handing her out the sweet talk.

Minute Make-Ups

By V. V.

Second. Make it part of your daily dozen to pay your wife a compliment. That keeps up her morale. A wife's public is her husband and if he never gives her the glad-hand she is apt to slump. She thinks, what's the use in dolling up myself for a man who never notices what I have on, or wearing myself out cooking a good dinner for a husband who gobbles it down without apparently knowing the difference between hash and a rug-cut?

If you want your wife to keep up her looks and to be a cracker-jack housekeeper, keep her on her toes by being unstinted in your praise. Flattery is good in courtship. In marriage it is a necessity.

Third. Keep yourself shaven and shorn and easy on your wife's eyes. Women care even more for appearances than men do and no wife looks at a slouchy, slovenly husband with a three days' stubble of beard on his face without wondering why she did it.

Fourth. Be as entertaining at home as you are abroad. Don't be the life of the table at a party and a stuffed shirt at your own fireside. No woman's idea of a happy evening is spending it with a man who only grunts when he is spoken to and never makes a voluntary remark, except to knock something she has done or left undone. Women marry for companionship. See that your wife gets some.

Fifth. Be a little ray of sunshine. No woman can make a happy home by herself. That is a two-handed job that takes both a husband and wife working together to pull off. Don't save all the temper and nerves and irritability that you dared not show the public for home consumption. Make yourself as agreeable to your wife as you would to any woman to whom you were trying to sell a bill of goods.

Sixth. Deal generously with your wife about money. Give her not only a housekeeping allowance but an allowance for herself. No woman can run a house economically if she doesn't know how much she has to spend. And no woman ever forgives a man who makes her come to him like a beggar for every cent. Giving a wife an allowance saves 365 breakfast-table spats a year. It preserves a wife's self-respect and makes her think of her husband as a partner instead of a tightwad.

Seventh. Don't treat your wife's family as if they were poison and act as if you were being martyred every time they come on a visit. You may not think much of them, she does, and if she failed in affection and loyalty to the mother who bore her and the father who toiled to support her and the brothers and sisters she grew up with, she would lack the very foundation that made her desirable as a wife.

Eight. Make little treats for your wife. Give her surprises. Take her on little trips. Remember anniversaries. Do something to keep her thinking that you still regard her as a Lady Love instead of a household convenience. Spending a little money on giving a wife a good time is the best investment any man ever makes.

Ninth. Chum with your wife. Talk to her about the things that she is interested in. Tell her of your hopes and plans. It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to get so absorbed in his business and for a woman to get so obsessed with the children that they lose touch with each other and drift apart; and come to be such strangers that they cannot even carry on a conversation together, because neither knows anything of the other's inner life. Watch out or this will happen to you.

Tenth. Don't take your wife for granted. She isn't a mind reader and doesn't know that you love her and appreciate her and think she is the greatest woman in the world. Never cease telling her how marvelous you think she is, and if you will do that she will be the happiest woman in the world and the most envied.

DAILY TRUE STORY

THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT

By Llewellyn Bronson

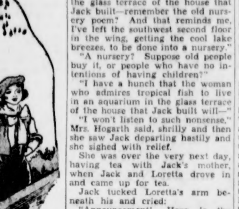

"I think," Jack Armstrong murmured lazily, from the depths of a porch chair, "that I shall build a house."

His mother glanced at him with amused tolerance.

"Well, my goodness, Jack," Mrs. Hogarth said, "what silly notion will you have next?"

"What's silly about a house?" Jack inquired.

He didn't care much for Mrs. Hogarth. Probably the chief reason for this dislike was because Mrs. Hogarth was the stepmother of the sweetest and most charming little girl in all the world. If you doubt that this is an honest description of this girl, Jack's father will assure you that it doesn't do her justice.

"Meet the bride and groom," Jack said.

Well, Jack's dislike of Mrs. Hogarth wasn't exactly because she was Loretta Hogarth's stepmother. He might have got over it, it was because Mrs. Hogarth had said, repeatedly and emphatically, that she would never, never, never permit Loretta to marry Jack. Not if Jack were the last person on earth (probably she meant male person). It wasn't because Jack was dissolute or ugly or inane or anything like that at all. Jack was perfectly normal, rather unusually good looking, sufficiently intelligent and financially able to marry and support a flock of wives were he so inclined and the thing were permissable.

Jack, who was inclined to be rather coarse at times, said it was something else that Mrs. Hogarth was full of. Mrs. Hogarth dabbled in numerology and astrology and what-not of that sort. She had looked up all of the signs of the zodiac and she had studied the letters of the names of Jack and Loretta and had numbered them and subtracted and divided them and had come to the firm belief that they were not suited to each other and never would be and although Loretta was not her own child she felt she had been more interested in Numerology than Biology she had Loretta's interest at heart and wouldn't let her make her life a failure.

Now to get back to Jack and his remark about building a house.

"House come in handy. People live in them, did that ever occur to you, Mrs. Hogarth?" Jack asked.

He appeared to be just lazily sagging down in the porch chair, absorbing a little sun and resting, but he was mentally quite awake.

Jack's mother, always friendly to Mrs. Hogarth, let her shock her head at Jack and smiled a warning smile. They were supposed to overlook Mrs. Hogarth's idiosyncracies.

"It doesn't take much mentality," Mrs. Hogarth said, tolly, "to bring to mind that you have a most beautiful home here to live in and Loretta's father has provided for her so handsomely that she wear boy thought he would build. He just thought he would build, but he didn't. Let him think he will build this house," his mother said.

He grinned at them, excused himself, got up and departed in his car. He drove around to the Hogarth home, went down to the tennis courts with Loretta and sat and talked with her an hour. They never even looked at a tennis racquet.

This statement of Jack's had been made in very early June. By the middle of July workmen were putting up a house evidently a big house, and it was of that quaint old red sandstone that the early Dutch settlers used.

The house grew space and Mrs. Hogarth merely spoke of it as that "Jack Armstrong's Folly." As Loretta, when her stepmother pointed out to her how irresponsible Jack was, she merely said, "Jack seems to enjoy building the house and if it gives him pleasure and doesn't bother us, why worry?"

Jack was loafing on the home porch one afternoon, having come from the village, when he said, "Well, the house that Jack built is finished."

"Humph!" was Mrs. Hogarth's comments.

"Going to furnish it—of course I'll get the best of advice. Now take the boudoir. I wouldn't know about that."

"Who would? I mean, who would know the tastes of whatever woman buys your house?" Mrs. Hogarth demanded. Then a thought came to her and she sat right up and looked at Jack.

"Aren't you awfully silly to furnish it and then sell it?"

"Yes indeed," Jack agreed.

Mrs. Hogarth made a gesture indicative of her pity for one so mentally weak.

"And the aquarium. I just don't know what sort of an aquarium to get for the glass terrace."

"Why aquarium?" Mrs. Hogarth demanded, rather tartly.

"Fancy tropical fish do better in an aquarium than kicking around the house, on their own, an expert in such things tells me."

"I don't believe you are in your right mind, Jack Armstrong."

"Jack's mighty all right Sarah," his mother said. Mrs. Hogarth shuddered when she was called by her first name. She disliked it even more than Jack.

"But I can't see any sense to furnishing a house on speculation and having what you call a bunch that who ever gets the house will love goldfish."

"All sorts of fish, Mrs. Hogarth. You know, fish for the aquarium in the glass terrace of the house that Jack built—remember the old nursery poem? And that reminds me, I've left the southwest second floor in the wing, getting the cool lake breezes, to be done into a nursery."

"A nursery? Suppose old people buy it, or people who have no intentions of having children?"

"I have a hunch that the woman who admires tropical fish to live in an aquarium in the glass terrace of the house that Jack built will—"

"I won't listen to such nonsense," Mrs. Hogarth said, shrilly and then she saw Jack chuckling and she sighed with relief.

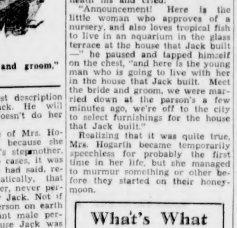

She was over early the very next day, having tea with Jack's mother, when Jack and Loretta drove in an automobile for tea.

Jack tucked Loretta's arm beneath his and cried:

"Announcement! Here is the little woman who approves of a nursery, and also loves tropical fish to live in an aquarium in the glass terrace at the house that Jack built —"

He paused and tapped himself on the chest, "and here is the young man who is going to live with her in the house that Jack built. Meet the bride and groom, we were married down at the parson's a few minutes ago, we're off to the city to select furnishings for the house that Jack built."

Realizing that it was quite true, Mrs. Hogarth became temporarily speechless for probably the first time in her life. She managed only to murmur something or other before they started on their honeymoon.

Question—I should like to have some advice regarding style of table service most pleasing at a guest-dinner in a Summer cottage. Which person should be served first? Is it proper for the hostess to be served first? J. P.

Answer—Since no one is supposed to begin a meal before the hostess does, she is served first at large dinners, so that each guest may begin to eat at once. Usually the guest of honor is served first at a small dinner.

Question — Are flirtations for beaches or in street cars ever permissible—or worth anything to the girl who responds? A. OBSERVER.

Answer—Many girls — especially girls in business life—meet people worthy men without formal introductions; sometimes, acquaintances of this sort develop into real friendship, perhaps into genuine love, resulting in engagement and marriage. Acquaintances begun through public flirting is not in that class. The male flirt, who infests the beaches, the public conveyances and city streets, has no respect for the girls who respond to his practiced glances and smiles. He knows that no well-bred girl will encourage the advances of a total stranger, however dexterous a coquette she may be among the men who are known to her. The girl who flirts with an unknown man not only brands herself with commonness, but also lets herself be fair adventures dangerous only to her.

MARILYN MILLER

Artificial Eyelashes Used By Many Famous Beauties

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

The charming Marilyn Miller, who is just about the most popular and best-loved musical comedy star that ever graced a Broadway stage, often uses artificial eyelashes when tripping about behind the footlights. Marilyn has another use for these lashes too, though. She does not like to bother much with mascara when she goes for a dip in the swimming. So she uses her artificial eyelashes instead, when she goes for a dip in the sea.

Judging from my recent mail, however, Marilyn isn't the only lass who figures that artificial lashes should prove a great help to summer swimming. For a good many gals have asked that I give them detailed information about these lashes. They claim that their lashes are too light, or too sparse to give their eyes proper accent. When they emerge from the ocean, they complain, they look washed out and colorless. And they figure that artificial eyelashes should prove a great help to them.

Artificial eyelashes, of course, really do add a great deal to the loveliness of the eyes when properly used. For they give the eyes a beautifully long and dark appearance. There are two different types of artificial eyelashes now in general use. The first type consists of a tiny, thread-like strip of adhesive material on which the lashes are attached in proper formation. The strip of material must be carefully fastened to each eye just above the natural lashes. And when the lashes are fastened to each eyelid, they look seriously, and do not seem at all false or artificial. The second type of artificial lashes consists of loose, individual hairs that are attached separately. It's a bit of a task to attach these lashes properly at first, but once you get the hang of the thing, you'll find it easy enough to apply the simple procedure. You pick up one of the curved hairs, dip the end of it in a little adhesive, and touch it to the tip of one of your own lashes, to which it adheres. And you continue to add the false lashes in this way until there are enough to form a lovely fringe for your eyes. Those lashes greatly enhance eye beauty. And they adhere despite tears, face creams, and — amazingly — even swimming!

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

"Say, I have had enough of this," said Dotty, "Hearing Thunder hiss and roar, and seeing Lightning flash is scaring me to death.

"The wind is also running wild. Why, it would scare most any child. It's whizzing by so fast that I can hardly catch my breath."

We didn't want to ride this tree," said Goldy. "Kindly ask the wind to take us out of here."

Then Thunder had a change of heart. "All right," said he, "You can depart. I'll have the wind blow you right down. Of me you'll then be clear."

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Well," Goopy said, "I quite agree, but we're as helpless as can be. If we drop from this sailing ship, we'll crash down on the ground.

"All we can do is hang on tight, and trust that we'll be all right." Then topple to the earth, I'd really rather sail around."

Ol' Flashy Lightning heard the two, and cried, "We have the best of you. Up in the land of clouds and such you have no place at all. We're going to try for all we're worth to teach you to stay down on earth. I'm sure, when we get through, you never again will want to call."

"Aw, we're as guiltless as can be,

It was no sooner said than done. "Oh, gee," cried Dotty. "This is fun. We're heading for the earth now, and no more will we be sash.

"Gee, I'll be glad to see my feet down on the ground. 'Twill be a treat." And then all of the Tinies saw a flare and heard a crash.

The tree they sat on landed and were quickly surrounded by kind hand. "The lightning's struck our tree," he cried. "It's burning, lads, right now.

"Oh, my, we're in an awful fix. I'll bet it's one of Thunder's tricks. All we can do is try to get away from here, somehow."

(The rain king comes to the Tinies' rescue in the next story.)

Your Children

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Paul W. Kearny tells some things about lightning.

In this year of storms it is comforting to hear that out of a hundred and some million people in our country, less than 500 are killed by electric storms, although only an average of 2000 are injured.

"More than as many are killed tripping over rugs and five hundred times as many are killed or injured by automobiles," he says.

Therefore the chances are small of meeting our Maker by way of the storm route.

One of the hardest things in life is for us grown-ups to control our feelings when one terrific blast after another shakes the earth and sky. Yet it is precisely what we oldsters have to do when our brood is about.

There is nothing so catching as fear. Catching because it is already there to swing into life at the first suggestion. And few things can make life so wretched as these fear obsessions of ours. The fewer fears children grow up with the happier life will be.

Any child with a family of little folk has an unconquerable dread of storms. Her terror of lightning amounts almost to hysteria. But not one of her children bothers about a storm.

They laugh at the "boom bang"

O. R. Barton

overhead and at the flashes.

COVERS UP EMOTION

The miracle is due to her own comfort. "If I'm scared too much to hide it," she tells me, "I say I have a little headache and lie on the couch with my face to the wall. They play about. But, of course, I know what they are doing.

"Usually I can keep going. Sometimes we start a game or I even sing. But one thing I never do. I never talk to them about the storm, except to say, 'My, oh, my, now it's going to be cooler.'"

A real soldier mother, this. She knows the agony of storm terror and she wants her children to avoid it if possible.

She blames her own fear on the precedure of her mother, whose she was little, of pulling down all the shades, of hauling her small daughter into a dark room, covering her head and uttering low moans at every crack.

HOW TO SET FEAR

Dramatizing self in electric storms serves to set the fear—there is no doubt about it. The only real safety is to be calm and to be afraid. We should work toward that and with children even though we are hopeless ourselves.

Mr. Kearny warns about fireplaces and chimneys — favorite meeting ground of the stray bolt. And open fields. And tall trees. It is not wise to choose the tallest tree in a group or to stand too close to any tree. But even so, we can remember with comfort that the odds are small.

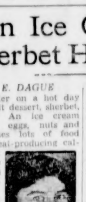

Lemon Ice Or Mint Sherbet Hits The Spot

By MARY E. DAGUE

Nothing is better on a hot day than a frozen fruit dessert, sherbet, ice or mousse. An ice cream rich with cream, eggs, nuts and chocolate furnishes lots of food value but also heat-producing calories. So while it may be cold to the taste, it has the reverse effect on the body and thus add extra heat.

Fruit pulp and sugar are used to make a mousse-like and fruit juice and sugar syrup to make an ice. Sherbet or sorbet adds stiffly beaten whites of eggs to a water ice foundation.

Remember in making ices that sugar is a good preservative and adds fuel value to a meal. Use enough to make the ice palatable, but don't over sweeten and thus add extra heat.

Sister Mary

MUSCOVITE OR WATERMELON

Four cups shredded watermelon pulp (a cupful of sugar, 4 tablespoons non-alcoholic sherry.

Break watermelon with a fork, removing seeds. Combine with sugar and sherry and turn into freezer. Pack in four parts ice to one part ice cream salt and let stand two hours or longer. Serve in chilled sherbet glasses.

LEMON ICE

This can be used as the foundation for several inviting desserts and beverages.

Four cups water, 2 cups sugar, 4 lemons, 1 large orange or 2 small ones, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatine.

Grate rinds of orange and lemon and add to sugar and water. Bring to the boiling point and boil eight minutes. Soften gelatine which has been softened in 4 tablespoons cold water for five minutes. Stir until cool. Squeeze juice from lemons and orange and strain. When syrup is cold, add strained juice and turn into freezer. Freeze as usual.

To make tutti-frutti ice, add 1 cup diced peaches or apricots and 1 cup red raspberries when lemon ice is half frozen.

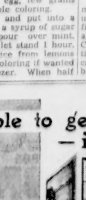

For lemon granite, add 1 cup sweet cider and 1 cup crushed ice and serve in tall glasses. Lady fingers or quick sponge cakes are good to serve with the granite.

Lemon frappe is served in punch glasses. Make a hole in the centre of each serving and fill with 2 or 3 tablespoons grape juice.

MINT SHERBET

Four lemons, 2 oranges, 1 large bunch mint, 2 cups water, 1 cup sugar, white of 1 egg, few grains salt, green vegetable coloring.

Cut mint finely and put into a large bowl. Make a syrup of sugar and water and pour over mint. Cover closely and let stand 1 hour. Strain and add juice from lemons and oranges. Add coloring if wanted and turn into freezer. When half frozen fold in white of egg beaten until stiff with five grains of salt. Finish freezing and serve with a garnish of slightly sweetened whipped cream.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced peaches, corn beef hash with breakfast radishes, bran muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Eggplant baked with tomato sauce and cheese, toasted muffins, apple float, milk, tea.

DINNER: Black bass baked in cream, browned sweet potatoes, spinach with onion sauce, salad of cabbage and cucumber in lime jelly, tutti-frutti ice, milk, coffee.

Motive Is Lacking In Hollywood Suicide

SONG WRITER WAS MORBID SINCE TRIAL

Jerry Jarnagin Shot Dead —Husband of Comedy Actress Was Worried

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—Police decided Monday Jerry Jarnagin's death was a suicide, despite the lack of a definite, accepted motive.

The song writer husband of Irene Franklin, musical comedy actress, was found shot to death in his Lake Hollywood Drive home Sunday night.

Capt. Bert Wallis of the police homicide squad said Jarnagin had been morbid since the recent preliminary hearing of Lawrence Thomas, former house boy, on charges of beating Miss Franklin. The song writer was worried also over finances and getting movie employment, Wallis said.

"He was shot by his own gun," Capt. Wallis added.

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

By DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21—A film star, yet unknown to the public.

Such an individual is a rarity indeed in the United States. So Ketti Gallian must be classed as a rarity.

This slight blond actress has been in Hollywood seven months and she is co-starred with Spencer Tracy in "Marie Galante." Yet she is an unknown as far as the American public is concerned.

However, this obscurity will be swept away with amazing rapidity upon the release of "Marie Galante," her first picture. Such at least is the belief of Fox studio executives. In other words, this Franco-Italian girl is a knock-out in her initial screen venture.

It was last Christmas eve that Ketti arrived in Hollywood, a stranger in a strange land and without even a knowledge of our language. She had a contract, but that was all—not a single friend. And a contract isn't of much help in a lonely girl thousands of miles from home on Christmas eve.

However, Miss Gallian managed somehow to get through the holiday season. Then her work started. The terms of her contract were rigid. They required that she learn English within three months, that she devote several hours each day to learning screen acting, and that she see at least one motion picture a day to become familiar with film technique.

She followed the contract faithfully and in addition spent considerable time listening in on radio programs to learn American pronunciation. Consequently, about two months ago, she got the title role in "Marie Galante." And she has made an instant hit, as you will have an opportunity to see as soon as the film is released.

ORDER TO CELEBRATE

"Cleopatra" being all set for release, Cecil B. DeMille decided to show his appreciation to his staff by taking them all to Chinatown to dinner the other night. But the invitations very closely resembled a call to work on a new DeMille production. They read: "We all will meet at the foot of the cross on Olvera street."

DOING EVERYTHING

Ralph Graves is one person in Hollywood who will have no trouble keeping his time filled during the coming year. He has just been signed by Adolph Pollock to write, produce, and star in four pictures. And I believe it or not, is a full year's job.

TOO MUCH FOR ONE MAN

Oscar Smith, Paramount's actor-bootblack, certainly showed Los Angeles a thing or two when he got on a real movie affair a few nights ago, when he staged the Colored Motion Picture Benefit Ball. The huge studio lights, plus Oscar's personal appearance in a loud checkered suit, drew such a crowd that extra police had to be detailed to that section to keep order.

Oscar really put on a show, too, with Carole Lombard, Molly O'Day, Judith Allen, Katherine DeMille, Roscoe Karns, and Libby Taylor all present. And the following morning Oscar failed to show up for work.

MODERN ROBOT FOILS RAIDING GOLD ROBBER

Bullion Saved at B.C. Mine as Shadow Cell Rings Alarm

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—Rarely even in detective fiction is there such a story of vigilance and devotion to duty as is supplied from the recent files of Canadian General Electric company, chronicling an attempt to steal $80,000 in bullion from a B.C. gold mine. No glamorous Moustache, no wizard of crime detection is the hero of the tale, but a little scientific device, simple in its operation, but almost superhuman in its effects and a terror to evil doers. To tell the story briefly, it was a matter of a yeggman being prevented from carrying off gold bricks by a photo-electric relay, but the yarn is far more interesting than that, and the technical name for the little piece of General Electric apparatus that guarded the strong room is not nearly romantic enough to fit the occasion.

It happened at the Pioneer Gold Mine at Goldbridge in the Bridge River district of British Columbia a few weeks ago. A clever criminal, knowing that the nearest police protection was 50 miles away, and week's production of the mine would likely be in the iron-barred chamber, where it is poured into bricks for the Mint, cut the telephone and telegraph wires and sawed his way through the metal walls of the gold room.

While the intruder was searching with a flashlight for the coveted gold bullion, a single brick of which is worth $50,000, trouble was brewing for him in the nearby camp. All unknown to him, his shadow had fallen across the invisible ray of a photo-electric cell concealed in the chamber, and in the distance a dozen alarm bells had rung. Superintendent Howard James was first to enter the strong room, dodged a couple of bullets and inflicted injuries with a large flashlight he carried. The yeggman got away, but the gold was saved.

Mining authorities point out that the photo-electric cell, operating on the invisible ray principle, such as the device that saved the Pioneer bullion, is ideal safety equipment for isolated properties, as many of the mines in Canada are. Only in foreign countries or in the underworld of large cities would gold bullion of such value be marketable, but the actual theft of the yellow metal is not so difficult in those days of airplane transport, unless the strong room at the mine is closely guarded. The photo-electric cell concealed in the strong room is an unfailing summons for assistance as soon as marauders arrive.

Meets Her Dad After 16 Years

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—Ann Dvorak, screen actress, got acquainted with her father Monday.

Miss Dvorak went down to the railway station and had to be introduced to Edward McKim, actor and the father she had not seen for 16 years.

Miss Dvorak, up to last Christmas, knew she had a father but didn't know where he was. McKim, on the other hand knew he had a daughter but did not realize she was the screen actress.

JAIL TURNKEY IS BLAMED AS CONVICT DIES

Coroner's Jury Investigates Death of Essex County Jail Inmate

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 21.—Responsibility for the death of Remi Van Leare was placed on Gordon Pillon, chief turnkey in Essex county jail, by a coroner's jury in Sandwich last night.

According to evidence submitted Van Leare was struck by Pillon and his jaw fractured. Infection followed and Van Leare died three days later. It was testified Van Leare previously had been struck by Edson Searle, during an altercation. Pillon, in uniform, had appeared and been upbraided by Van Leare, who took him for a police officer.

The blow was struck while Pillon was making a statement to Sandwich police. Van Learne contradicted him and made an uncomplimentary remark.

Remove Fork From Tummy Of Young Miss

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Aug. 21—Miss Lorraine Hefke of Owen Sound was recovering in hospital today from an operation to remove an ordinary silver fork, 7¼ inches long, from her stomach.

Miss Hewes, who is 18 years old, swallowed the extra heavy fork while examining her throat. She suffered no inconvenience at the time but consulted a physician at once and the operation was performed 3½ hours later after an x-ray was taken to determine the exact location of the fork. The girl was making excellent progress and will be about again soon.

Chickie's Daughter

CHAPTER 57

They stood on the top of a ridge in a darkness that billowed like a sea. Bill sniffed the air as though he could in some way scent human habitation.

After a moment he said slowly: "I think it's over, Pippin."

"Did the spirits tell you, or what?"

"I heard a dog bark."

She followed along, clinging to his arm and liking the dark mystery of the night.

"Look, isn't that a light?"

She saw only the thronging shadows massing together under clouds in a storm.

"It IS a light! Down there. And there's another one to the right."

Pippin said, excited: "Pricking like stars in a sunken world!"

Bill played the searchlight up and down the canyon. He said softly: "This is a trail."

They followed it. They could not see house nor fence, but just that light wavering like the heavily dark.

Suddenly and startlingly near, dogs were barking. They were on a steep path leading to a small cabin. The dogs made a great commotion and a man's voice shouted: "Down, Mose! Who's there?"

A big, easy-faced fellow with sulking shoulders and a bald head stood framed in the door with the light from the room flowing about him.

"No, we haven't any telephone. Was that your plane circling about the field?"

A woman and a little boy now edged into the picture, excitedly watching the visitors. The man held in leash a ferocious-looking police dog, who made heroic efforts to sniff at Bill's shoes. The man scratched his bald head while slowly and dubiously appraising Bill.

"You can't get to Livermore tonight. It's thirty miles over a rough, narrow road. No, I wouldn't drive my car there and back in the dark for a hundred dollars."

Pippin appealed to the woman who listened with the greatest of interest.

Finally she said to her husband: "Look here Jim, the Mitchell boys might be glad to earn a few dollars. This girl doesn't want to stay from home all night. Go down and get Burt up and see if he'll drive them."

The big man scowled and sighed. Then he put on a pair of boots, a leather coat and a woolen cap as though he was setting forth on an Arctic expedition, and taking a swinging lantern, walked down the road with the dogs yapping at his feet.

The woman and the child, both greatly excited, followed. When they came to the fork in the road, the man stopped and flashed his lantern toward the darkness.

"It's down that way less than half a mile. You can't miss it."

But the woman said indignantly: "Wouldn't you be ashamed, Jim, knowing you can't see Burt in front of you! Come along! We'll walk the way with them."

The little boy, bursting with curiosity, but entirely silent, trotted at Bill's side, listening eagerly as the man asked questions about the plane and the mishap which had forced them down.

They halted. Neither Bill nor Pippin saw anything but the shadows.

The woman said: "What will you pay to get to Livermore? It's a hard drive."

"Whatever it's worth."

She walked down a path. They heard her knocking loudly and calling, "It's Ma Nelson."

She returned in a few moments. Burt will do it for $20.00, paid in advance."

She took the money and with an air of triumph, led them to the shed where the car was parked.

"You HAVE a rabbit's foot!" Pippin murmured as Bill helped her into the small, rackety car, and the ranch woman said happily: "I'm glad. Now you'll get home. Burt knows the road. He's a good driver."

Burt must have known the road. He was a slow, sun-burned youth, about nineteen, with a large mouth and small, sharp eyes. He went hurtling around one curve and grinding over rocks at a pace that made Pippin's heart jump.

She said, nervously: "Quite an anti-climax to get killed now, after escaping the places so neatly."

Bill leaned forward. "Please drive more slowly."

But the boy shouted: "Don't be afraid! I know every snag in this road . . . driven it a thousand times. Never had an accident."

The shadows flew past; rocks scattered; pebbles dashed with sharp, rending sounds against the fenders. Now and then the headlights flashed on the wild chasms below them.

Pippin leaned against Bill and closed her eyes.

But they did finally reach Livermore and well before midnight.

They sat over the long deferred ham and eggs in a small and not very clean restaurant.

In front of them always strewn with rose petals, Bill!"

"Where were the roses tonight?"

"We might not have found that cabin. And you mightn't have had the $20.00 in cash. I know plenty of fine fellows who never have more than a dollar or two margin."

He leaned across the table, his eyes laughing into hers.

"I'd say they were the lucky fellows. If we hadn't found the house and if I didn't have the money, you and I would still be out there in the dark wilderness. I could have said so many things! There might have been a mountain lion which I would have strangled with my bare hands and you would have loved me for being such a hero. I'm afraid I let the great opportunity pass!"

He regarded her happily. She looked a little pathetic. The wind had blown in her face on the thirty mile drive, leaving her eye-lids reddened and her hair filled with dust.

"Now that you've had a taste of adventure, Pippin, do you crave more? Dropped from the sky onto unknown planets and meeting strange human things who rattle off through dark mountain forty miles a minute! Or is it all too hazardous and perhaps not worth while?"

She said with an eagerness that made her whole face shine: "It's worth it! I'd like to have exciting things happen every day—blazing romantic experiences. Some women have that kind of a life. Sara Bernhardt and Isadora Duncan. Yes Bill, I want adventure!"

"Then you must take up aviation! It's the most wonderful career in the world today. Magellan going round the world in a little sailing vessel that we wouldn't trust from here to Peace Hollows. Flying is the only thing in history that parallels the incredible bravery of the old time mariners. Pippin, would you like to fly around the world?"

"I'd love it!"

"I'm going to do that, Pippin." He looked at her steadfastly, his mouth tight and strained, his eyes full of pleading: "I'm going to fly all around the earth."

"When?"

He reached over, took her hand, pressed it between both of his and looked at her while seeking in her eyes: "I don't know. It depends. When would you like to start?"

The hand he clasped flamed in her cheeks; her mouth trembled. He said with his lips but making no sound: "I love you!"

When they were settled in the rented car and driving swiftly to Palo Alto, he slumped down and sang in a happy challenge: "Die Lorelei."

He parked the car for a moment in the shadow of trees and said a little sadly: "I've got you home safely, Pippin. I could wish that I had not. I'd like to be out there in that dark with you—always."

She said unexpectedly, surprising herself: "It was sweet," and took his kiss with closed eyes, lingeringly.

AMUSEMENTS

RIALTO

"Wine, Women and Song," the new Chadwick picture, which will be the feature attraction at the Rialto theatre for three days, beginning today, was enthusiastically received at a recent preview showing in New York. If the opinions of the leading trade journal critics who commented on the picture at that time are a competent criterion, "Wine, Woman and Song" seems destined to be one of the hits of the season.

The Film Daily calls it a "better than average backstage drama that should more than satisfy" and adds that Director Melville Brown "has handled the backstage and costume ensemble numbers cleverly." This production features Ann Sothern as "introduces Marjorie Moore, a sweet little Miss with more than usual appeal and talent. Miss Sothern gives a very convincing performance. Cody is swell as the suave producer."

In addition to those mentioned above, the cast of "Wine, Women and Song" includes Matty Kemp, Paul Gregory, Gertrude Astor, Bobbe Arnst, Bruce Mitchell, Dave Chasky, and Bobby Watson. Beatrice Collenette, one of Hollywood's best-known dance directors, staged the dance numbers, and the famous Colienette Ballet appears in several numbers.

A technicolor special "Morrocco Nights," a novelty reel "Going to Heaven on a Mule" and the latest Fox news completes the program.

EMPRESS

A picture of intense human feeling and situations, embracing a colorful phase of life unknown to most of us—the life of artists—is Universal's new presentation of Irene Dunne in "I Give My Love," from a story by Vicki Baum, noted authoress of "Grand Hotel" and other fine works which opened yesterday at the Empress theatre, where it continues today and Wednesday.

With its colorful backgrounds and artistic settings, plus some exceptional performances from both Miss Gibson and her co-star Paul Lukas, this film has a great deal to offer to theatre patrons.

When a motion picture can extract both laughter and tears there can be no doubt about its quality. Such a picture is "I Give My Love," teeming with drama and emotion, yet not unmindful of the gayer side of life. It is a story of real life and about real people whose problems will strike a strange personal reaction among audiences.

CAPITOL

"She used her beauty to make

"TOMORROW" opens today at the Capitol theatre for a two days' run. Based on the novel by Conrad Richter, it tells the story of a woman who lived her own life, and who, in the end, found happiness in the love of a man who understood her.

Sidney Howard, who wrote the screen play, has done a splendid job of adapting the novel to the screen. Robert Young and Lewis Stone are seen in the leading roles, with Marian Nixon, Beryl Mercer, Oscar Apfel, Clara Blandick and Frank Conroy in the supporting cast.

STRAND

"Blue Danube Nights" is the feature picture at the Strand theatre today. Starring Jan Kiepura, Polish tenor, and Gitta Alpar, Hungarian soprano, the picture is a musical romance of Vienna. Kiepura is a singer in a cafe who is discovered by Alpar, a famous prima donna. Their romance is complicated by the fact that Alpar is married to a wealthy man who is jealous of her success.

Also on the program is Buster Keaton in "Gold Ghost," a comedy.

Petitions To Be Circulated: Seek Fifth Reduction

Provincial Govt. Intervention Suggested at Huge Meeting Held in Parish Hall Monday Night.

Cut current taxes 20 per cent or face a taxpayers' strike was the ultimatum issued to members of the City Council from a mass meeting of property owners held Monday night.

The appointment of a board to enquire into the city's financial structure was requested by the meeting, it being also demanded that city council explore avenues of revenue to relieve the burden of taxation on the already overtaxed burgesses. The meeting also favored requesting city council to refrain from borrowing $500,000 from the Federal government for proposed public works.

Held in All Saints' parish hall the meeting, presided over by George Hazlett, former alderman, was distinctly rowdy, and at times out of control. Aldermen and School Board trustees were greeted with cat calls and hisses when they attempted to address the meeting, but were given a hearing after a prolonged demonstration. Members in the audience shouted "they did not wish to hear them"—"this was not an aldermanic meeting"—that they had come for action, not words, while one member moved that they be not heard. He failed to get a seconder for this motion after which members of the council and school board present proceeded to outline their policies.

The attendance was so great that it became necessary to hold an overflow meeting at the Y.W.C.A. hall.

MANY BACKERS

The motion for the 20 per cent cut in current taxes or in the event of failure of city council to carry through this reduction a tax payers' strike came from A. Doncaster, who recited instances of increase in assessment of properties where no improvements had been made for a number of years. This motion was seconded by over a score of people in the hall and was greeted with prolonged applause. He also proposed that city council seek other avenues of revenue to relieve the burden on the burgesses, and suggested the imposition of a surtax on renters. Other suggestions along this line were taxes on married women in employment whose husbands were working also, a tax on radios, pianos, chesterfield suites, and other luxuries.

Mr. Doncaster was convinced that members of city council would take no action unless they were convinced the ratepayers meant business, and it was suggested that a petition be circulated to gather names of all taxpayers who would support the resolution passed by the meeting.

Reasons advanced for asking the city to refrain from borrowing the $500,000 from the federal government for public works were that the taxpayers could not stand this further increase in debt, while several speakers were of the opinion that the money should not be borrowed until the consent of the burgesses had been obtained. One member of the audience voiced opposition, and pointed out that the city would have to increase its bonded indebtedness to provide relief, and was of the opinion it was better to increase the debt for useful public works than to continue to hand out relief without getting work in return.

NOT PROPERTY OWNER

The motion requesting the provincial government to appoint a board to enquire into the city's financial structure came from F. S. Wright, but was immediately challenged on the ground that Mr. Wright was not a property owner. This did not prevent the motion getting before the meeting as several taxpayers were willing to sponsor it. It passed.

A motion that this question be referred to a committee proposed by Joseph Adair met with like objection to that taken against Mr. Wright's. Again sponsors were found in the audience to put Mr. Adair's motion in order. It was lost in the first vote, but was brought before the meeting again at a later stage and carried. The result of the carrying of this motion is that all resolutions passed at the meeting will be sent to a special committee appointed to report to a further meeting to be held Monday evening, August 27.

The following were appointed to the committee: J. A. Adair, Walter Grierson, Mrs. Taylor, Mr. Cantin, Dr. Coldwell, Emil Skarin, John Gray, Mr. Hesin and J. S. McCallum, chairman.

Ald. J. T. McCreath, in outlining avenues which could be explored for the relief of taxation of property owners suggested a surtax on renters, a personal tax on luxuries, or the resigning of the city's autonomy to the provincial authorities in social services and letting the provincial government find the money to carry on these services.

HAS MANY DOUBTS

The abandonment of the supplementary revenue tax by the province and the turning of this avenue of taxation to the city was advanced by Ald. R. V. Bellamy, who was doubtful of planned economy and other remedies being advanced to relieve the economic situation.

Ald. J. S. Fry was of the opinion we were paying for the real estate expansion of the boom days, and that social credits, the Douglas plan of inflation could not be applied to remedy the city's financial situation.

"Have you the solution," came a voice from the back of the hall.

"If you have, come up and give it to us," replied Mr. Fry.

"Go into the receiver's hands," was the retort.

Continuing Alderman Fry complained of the unfairness of the governments in leaving the cities to shoulder the major portion of relief costs. He considered the provincial and federal governments should be called upon to share equally with the city in relief administration and relief costs. Under existing circumstances, he said, the city was paying over 50 per cent of relief costs.

UP TO ELECTORS

F. C. Casselman, public school trustee, told the meeting the remedy rested with the taxpayers. They should set a figure of expenditures and elect men to the aldermanic and school boards pledged to keep within these figures. If the ratepayers organized on these lines aldermen and school trustees would not dare to exceed the appropriations.

Dr. W. Morrish, public school board trustee, was of the opinion that the provincial government should bear a larger proportion of educational costs; and saw no way of effecting economies in school board expenditures unless through further cutting of teachers' salaries.

An appeal for more consideration of the resolutions passed at the meeting was made by J. W. Adair. He considered that not sufficient thought had been given to their effect and that it was not possible to arrive at any planned action unless resolutions were first sent to a committee for drafting before being presented to the main meeting. This suggestion met with approval from a great body of the people attending and was finally adopted.

WITHDRAWAL OF PICKETING CHARGES ASKED

Delegation Requests Govt. Aid in Cases of 50 City Jobless

Withdrawal of charges of being members of an unlawful assembly against the 51 workers arrested as a result of the potato patch picketing incident in the Forest Heights area early in June, was requested by members of a delegation of 18 from the Labor Defence League which interviewed Hon. J. F. Lymburn, K.C., attorney general on Tuesday.

The delegation also sought assistance from the attorney general in bringing pressure to bear upon the Dominion government for the unconditional release, or even ticket-of-leave release, of Tim Buck and Tom Ewing, two members of the League at present confined to the Kingston penitentiary for activities in 1931.

SMITH SPOKESMAN

A. C. Doolon introduced the delegation, while the chief spokesman was A. E. Smith, of Toronto, general secretary of the Labor Defence League. Jan Lakeman also spoke briefly.

Mr. Smith pointed out that these 51 workers were awaiting trial for being members of an unlawful assembly and the delegation urged that they had not caused trouble and should be released. He hoped the case might still be withdrawn from the courts, even though the men had been sent up for trial.

Regarding Buck and Ewing, Mr. Smith said that six of the other eight men convicted for Ontario activities had been released in one way or another and these two men should also be let out.

Regarding the 51 men in the potato patch incident, Hon Mr. Lymburn said that they would be treated as other accused. He would give every consideration to their cases. There might be some against whom charges should be laid. If the evidence justified it, then the courts must decide on the facts. If evidence showed thre was no justification for others being sent up, the charges would be withdrawn.

WILL PROBE BAIL BONDS

Whether the 51 Edmonton workers accused of being members of an unlawful assembly during the potato patch incident of last June were entitled to a rebate of the $105 levied for bail bonds and renewals thereof was a question asked of Hon. J. F. Lymburn, K.C., attorney general, by Jan Lakeman on Tuesday, during an interview the attorney general held with members of the Labor Defence League who had come to ask that the charges be withdrawn.

Mr. Lakeman asked what charges were made for bail bonds and whether the men had been rightfully charged $105 for the bonds when the bonds were made out during office hours.

The money had been collected from other workers in small amounts, five and 10 cent pieces, and it was important whether they got a rebate.

Hon. Mr. Lymburn stated that the Criminal Code specified the amount that could be charged for giving bail. He was of the opinion that some consideration should be given for an official who had to leave his home and bed in the night to arrange bail. Endeavor was being made to get away from bail charges and as he did not have all the information on the incident in question before him, he agreed to have a departmental official probe the whole question.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Following the return of John S. Labatt, kidnapped London, Ont., brewer, Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck voiced the conviction that "police should be given a much wider authority over the friends and relatives of the victim" in kidnapping cases.

Do you agree with Mr. Roebuck? the Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter asked.

Below are replies:

JACK FREEMAN, radio technician: "It is up to the police to get to the bottom of the case but how far their authority should go in giving orders to the family is a difficult question. I think there should be a line drawn somewhere. Certainly the family should give police all the co-operation they can."

C. PRYOR LOGAN, insurance: "I think in a matter like that the interest of the individual should be subordinated to that of the state. With full co-operation of the family, the police can work much more efficiently."

SOME BINDER TWINE RELIEF TO BE GIVEN

Emergent Cases Will be Taken Care of by Provincial Govt.

Arrangements have been completed by the provincial government to take care of emergent cases in need of binder twine to harvest the crops, according to an announcement made on Tuesday by Acting Premier J. F. Lymburn, K.C., following a cabinet meeting.

In making his announcement, the minister said:

NO GENERAL POLICY

"As already announced no general policy of providing binder twine on government guarantee will be instituted, but arrangements have been made to take care of emergent cases in districts where the situation is acute and some assistance is necessary, through the field forces of the department of agriculture, municipalities and relief."

From information reaching the government, the binder twine situation has been most acute in the Peace River territory, and Hon. Hugh Allen, minister of lands and mines, who returned from a tour of the area last Saturday, agreed that there was relief needed in some quarters for the smaller farmers specially who, having practically no assets, were unable to put up security.

These are the men who will benefit from the action announced by the acting Premier.

Police Court

J. A. Clarke, Edmonton barrister, and former mayor, unfolded a deep, dark mystery in police court on Tuesday when he defended Emma Murrell, bewitching brunette beauty, charged with forgery and uttering a forged document.

Mr. Clarke was cross-examining an employee of Weber Brothers with regard to a car on which a man named Miller had fallen behind in his payments, and to pay for which Mrs. Murrell is alleged to have brought a check which the official declined to cash.

Mrs. Murrell is alleged to have said that Miller was at Macklin, Sask., but the check was o.k.

"Where is the car?" asked Mr. Clarke.

The official, F. G. Conroy, said he didn't know.

He presumed that it was at Macklin, along with the gent who had bought it.

"Oh, no, it isn't," said Mr. Clarke; "it's up at Jasper!"

"At Jasper?"

"Yes. And do you know who owns the car?"

"Mr. Miller."

"No, I own it. It's my car."

C. Becker, crown prosecutor: "I would say that Weber Brothers own it until Miller has paid for it."

"Well, anyway, I have got an order from the police to get the car from Jasper," said Mr. Clarke triumphantly.

Turning again to Conroy, Mr. Clarke asked: "And where is Miller?"

"I suppose he is at Macklin."

"Oh no, he isn't; he's at Fort Saskatchewan for six months."

A chortle of laughter and a stir in court at this.

Marcel Bernier, South Side bank employee, then told of Mrs. Murrell coming in to him with the check, which he sent to Bashaw for collection. When it returned dishonored, he put the matter in the hands of the police.

Mrs. Murrell was remanded for trial and Mr. Clarke suggested that the bondsman would be acceptable to the crown and Mr. Becker.

"Mr. Becker would like to see about that," softly returned Mr. Becker, examining the document.

"Why, I see the bondsman is on relief," said Mr. Becker, startled, when he examined the bail bond.

"Oh, well, he has a house and lot," said Mr. Clarke, and Magistrate Williams accepted the bond.

"He asked me if I was feeling any better, then he hit me three times on the head," said the wife.

The daughter said that she has recently had some stitches put in her face as a result of an auto crash, and her father, as he struck her, is alleged to have said, "Now you can get some more stitches in your face."

Asked how long he was married, accused said "We were married two years when I first gave my wife a little licking."

Further questions about the time he had been married brought the same reply. He said the trouble started through his wife refusing to help him in his daily work on a five-acre farm on the edge of the city.

WORK PROGRAM FOR DOMINION IS INADEQUATE

Labor Official Says Ordinary Building Plan Would Total $350,000,000

That nothing would be done by the powers of government to remedy industrial conditions revealed in the investigation of the Stevens' committee and that the powers that be would "pour a pail of political whitewash over it" was the opinion expressed by John W. Bruce, Toronto, Canadian vice-president of the Union of Plumbers and Steam Fitters of America and Canada, at a meeting of the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council, Monday night.

Mr. Bruce, in a tour of the country, spoke briefly at the meeting, following a conference with the Edmonton local of the plumbers' union. He was in the city en route east from the coast and intends to stop at Regina, Saskatoon and Winnipeg.

B.N.A. ACT BUGBEAR

Stating that the B.N.A. act was a bugbear which stands in the way of remedial change, the speaker felt that the work of the Stevens committee would be aborted.

Referring to discussions he heard at the meeting with regard to distress among relief recipients, he said, "Canadians all over the country are confronted with the same conditions as you were dealing with tonight.

"If the governments are sincere in the desire to meet the relief situation, they should find ways and means to deal with it. The great army of workers wants to work. If there was a war the government could find millions of dollars to carry on either a defensive campaign or an offensive campaign."

CANADIANS TOO PASSIVE

He felt that Canadians were too passive in the face of conditions. If they were looking to the polls for a change, he believed they would be disappointed, that Canada was facing a dictatorship.

"Revelations of the Stevens committee were not news to you men," he said, "but I don't think anything will be done about it."

A report of the royal commission on industrial relations of 1919, of which he was a member, still hides in the archives of the government, he said.

He scored Premier Bennett's works program of $45,000,000, stating that an ordinary building program for the Dominion would amount to $350,000,000. There were 350,000 tradesmen needing work, he said, many of whom had not touched the tools of their trade in four years.

"There must be a solution of the problem," he said. "We must reach out for the ownership of the means of production and distribution. Private enterprise has failed."

He expressed hope and confidence that the Labor party would some day find the means to provide a living and a happy life for all.

JOBLESS HOLD PROTEST MEET

In a protest meeting addressed by A. E. Smith, Toronto, organizer for the Canadian Labor Defence League, a five-point program of agitation in aid of 51 relief strikers who face charges of unlawful assembly in supreme court during the third week in September, was adopted.

The meeting was featured by attacks on the "Labor city council" for inaction in moving to aid the strikers and on former Police Magistrate Col. George B. McLeod for his bail bond fee.

Holding of mass demonstrations of protest before and during the trial.

Circularizing of all farmers' U.F.A. "locals," trades unions, churches, university students, service clubs, C.C.F. groups and women's organizations to enlist their sympathy.

Speaking tour of the district of several indicted men to gain support.

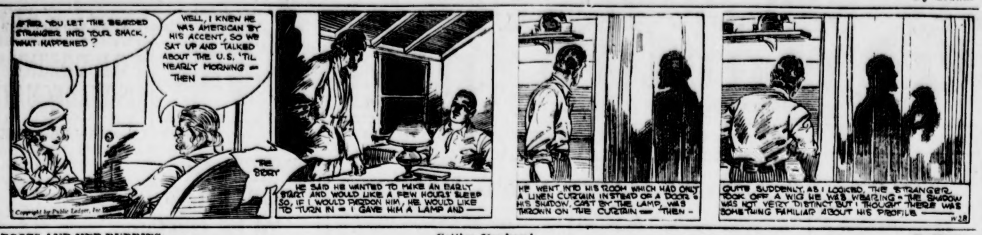

Appointment of a committee of 21 with outside organizations named, to conduct the campaign.

Visitors who registered at the Alberta Motor Association office Monday are: Vriel Budnitzky, Winnipeg; J. B. Oliver, Grande Prairie; Mr. and Mrs. John J. Phoenix, Greensboro, North Carolina; Dr. A. R. Davis, Potomac, Illinois; W. T. Shearer, Ridgeland, Mississippi; Leon Chatain, Chicago, Illinois; Joe Whittingher, Chicago, Illinois; Harold and Gordon Parr, Saskatoon; Neil and Barbara Smith, Superior, Wisconsin; Z. H. Estey, Vancouver; J. R. Anderson, Calgary.

Stevens Blames Selfish Individuals, Not System

Meagre Profits Paid Insurance Holders Cited

Answers Questions as to Who is Capitalist; Every Man With Farm, Store, or Tools to Give Service

NELSON, B.C., Aug. 21.—"I'm not protecting selfish, avaricious and greedy men who are operating under the capitalist system, but I am not going to denounce that system because some under it do things they should not do and that are not fundamental to the system," Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, stated in an address here last night.

Who are the capitalists? he asked. And replied to his own question: "Every farmer who has a fence around a piece of land and owns some implements and stock. So is the garage-keeper who has some tools. Or the grocer, or the dry-goods merchant, or anyone who possesses anything with which to perform service."

INSURANCE PROBLEM

One of the largest outgrowths of capitalism was the insurance companies. But of their total earnings, only two and one-half per cent went to stock-holders. There were more than ,000,000 life insurance policies in force in Canada which would be wiped out if capitalism were arbitrarily abolished.

Of much the same nature were the banks. The money they loaned was made up of an infinite number of individual deposits by Canadian citizens, the bank capital being only a very small proportion. Every depositor was a capitalist.

Under any democratic form of government accumulation of capital was bound to occur, because ownership of property was inherent to democracy. Neither a state socialism as in Russia, nor a Mussolini dictatorship as in Italy, could give the results from capitalists that a free democracy could.

CONDEMNS UNFAIR

While defending individual ownership and liberty of action under which, he said, the average Canadian qualified as a capitalist, Mr. Stevens condemned such business as had used their opportunities to become wealthy through unfair competition and by abuse of the producers or the workers.

Mr. Stevens urged the way to change the present system into what it should be was by the Biblical ideal of "here a little and there a little," making changes that would do away with abuses while retaining the vast uses.

He referred to business practices uncovered by the price spreads and mass buying inquiry. "I suppose I shall be pilloried for this," he remarked when referring to various things disclosed.

EACH DO LITTLE

Each individual, working in the orbit of his own influence, could do a little to better conditions, and the sum would be much. On the other hand, to sit back and merely ask, "what are they going to do about it?" did not illustrate a very high type of Canadian citizenship. The average of Canadian citizenship was high but it did not follow that all Canadians were pulling their weight to solve the country's problems soundly.

Mr. Stevens spoke under the auspices of the board of trade and associated business organizations.

WORLD WHEAT OPEN SEASON TO NOVEMBER

Conference Abandons Export Quota Problems for Time Being

LONDON, Aug. 21—Attempts to reach an agreement on export quotas were definitely abandoned today by the world wheat conference, which has been in session for a week. Unrestrained shipping of wheat by all countries is assured, at least until November.

This means the first "open season" in wheat shipping since the 1934 wheat agreement was signed last August, although during the year Russia refused to accept her quota and Argentina exceeded her allotment when negotiations for an increase fell through.

No meeting of the full conference was held today, although one had been announced yesterday in an official communique. A sub-committee, made up of representatives of seven nations, held a further meeting today to work out details of a new agreement which will be submitted to the governments.

A plan for a quarterly adjustment of quotas, instead of the fixed annual figure, is the chief feature of the proposal on which the sub-committee is working but a scheme to adjust these quotas strictly on a basis of prices prevailing in each quarter was abandoned for the time being.

The refusal of Argentina to accept less than 150,000,000 bushels, coupled with a favorable world wheat situation because of the drought, led the conference to abandon a plan for establishing annual quotas during this session. A discussion of the allotment was postponed until November.

MONEY SOUGHT AT 3 PER CENT. FOR ONTARIO

Hepburn Plans to Put Savings Certificates on Market Soon

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—The issuance of Ontario government savings certificates bearing 3 per cent interest is in contemplation, Premier Hepburn intimated Monday.

"We have to get cheaper money," he said, "and that is one way to do it. We could issue them at one, two, three, four or five years and I believe the public would subscribe."

Mr. Hepburn pointed to last year's issue of $40,000,000 provincial government five and a half per cent, now quoted around 115, and a previous issue now at 116 or 117.

The Ontario premier discussed financial questions with Mr. Bennett. The word of the federal Prime Minister carrier considerable weight in the external money market and Mr. Hepburn stated that Mr. Bennett was willing to give a favorable report on Ontario's financial stability and ability to meet her indebtedness. This would have a beneficial effect in borrowing outside Canada.

Inside Canada, Ontario's credit was too well known to need further endorsation.

Funeral Directors Open Convention

The Alberta Funeral Directors' Embalmers Association Convention which is being held in the Memorial Hall got away to a good start Monday morning when acting Mayor Alderman East opened the convention with an address of welcome to the 130 delegates assembled.

Dr. Elstein of the Williams' Institute, Kansas City, Kansas, who was scheduled for the lectures and demonstrations, owing to illness was unable to be present. Professor Dr. Clement Williams, of the Williams' Institute, is taking the place of Dr. Elstein. The convention delegates consider themselves exceedingly fortunate in securing Dr. Williams as he is recognized as the outstanding lecturer and demonstrator on the subject of embalming in North America.

A display of caskets and funeral directors' equipment is being shown at the Memorial Hall during the convention.

Monday evening a business session was held in which reports, election of officers and general business were discussed.

ARMED BATTLE LOOMS IN OLD LONG STRUGGLE

New Orleans Political Strife May Develop Into Serious Fight

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 21—A threat of armed conflict hung over New Orleans Monday on the eve of Senator Huey P. Long's legislative investigation into Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's city administration.

Senator Long, backed with the state militia, a private army and a host of "dictator" powers conferred on him by a subservient legislature, maintained an ominous silence as Sept. 11 primary election, spearhead of the embroglio, approached.

Mayor Walmsley's police stood at their arms, awaiting his orders, as he reaffirmed his intention to prevent Long's "armed henchmen" from appearing at the polls on election day.

There was the impasse.

Dynamite may be touched-off by Long's legislative committee investigation into governmental affairs in the city, which has been indefinitely scheduled to start early this week.

Kidnap Story Is Discredited By Authorities

GOLDSBORO, Aug. 21.—Reports tending to discredit the Rev. R. H. Askew's story of being kidnapped set the 28-year-old "Four Square Gospel" evangelist's flock agog.

Nashville, Tenn., officers who already were openly incredulous of the evangelist's tale of being held captive four days in a "big green automobile" announced that employees of a hotel there had identified Askew from newspaper photographs as a man who spent Friday night in the hotel.

HAIL RAVAGES FORT CROPS

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, Aug. 21—Cutting a narrow swath across a small area of land near Fort Saskatchewan shortly after 1.20 p.m. Monday, a heavy hail storm levelled crops on the farms of J. R. Trotter, Alex Todd and Edmund Noel.

Lasting less than 10 minutes, the hail piled up six to seven inches deep and in shaded parts the stones did not melt until late in the day.

Mr. Trotter had been cutting wheat during the forenoon and while in the house at lunch the storm ravaged the field in which he had been working. Two fields to the west of his Todd's and Noel's were also struck but the crop on the east owned by Tommy McPike was untouched, the storm following the fence line.

The hailed area amounted to about a section and was practically all in crop. Oats and barley on the three farms were wiped out while damage to the wheat is estimated at 50 per cent or greater.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE BULLETIN

By E. V. SHEPARD

FAMOUS BRIDGE TEACHER

DIRECTED OR SUBSTITUTE LEAD?

The fate of a no trump call frequently depends upon the relative efficiency of a directed lead of the suit partner has bid and that of a substitute lead of your own best suit. You cannot hope to establish both suits. Senior must decide which he shall lead, and make his decision before his opening lead.

Bidding went: South, 1-Club; West, 1-heart; North, 2-No Trumps, showing several stops; South, 3-Clubs; North, 3-No Trumps.

The first consideration was for East to decide which of the two red suits to lead. Partner has bid hearts, but the declarer had announced several stops to hearts. East's diamonds were biddable, otherwise he would have had no problem to consider. Probably clubs were solid. East held the ace of spades, and it was probable that West held at least one trick in spades or diamonds. Unfortunately for the defenders East decided to lead his partner's suit, then to shift to his own suit in case hearts seemed hopeless. East led the 4 of hearts. West's 10 was captured with the declarer's Q. North needed a single spade trick to give him game. He led the Q of spades. East captured the trick with his ace, then he led his 5 of diamonds. West's K took the trick, and he returned his 9 of diamonds. North's J covered. Whether East won the trick, or waited for his partner to gain entry and lead another diamond was all the same. North could not fail to go game. Two heart tricks, 1 diamond trick, 1 spade trick and 5 club tricks must yield game. East decided to take his ace of diamonds, to prevent 5 odd from being made. North made 4 odd.

Suppose East had made an opening lead of his 5 of diamonds. West's K would have won the first trick. He would have led back a diamond. East's ace would have won the second trick, and another lead would

North: ♠ Q J 7 ♥ A Q 9 8 ♦ Q J 3 ♣ 10 4 2

West: ♠ 8 5 4 ♥ K J 10 6 5 ♦ K 9 2 ♣ 9 6

East: ♠ A 9 6 ♥ 4 2 ♦ A 10 7 5 4 ♣ 7 5 3

South: ♠ K 10 3 2 ♥ 7 3 ♦ 8 6 ♣ A K Q J 8

have cleared diamonds, giving North a single trick in the suit. North could win only 8 tricks before he must lead a spade. Then East's ace of spades and 4 diamond tricks must defeat the contract a single trick.

Shifting suits from hearts to diamonds, cost East his sole card of re-entry before he had established his suit. East's strategy was bad. As a rule, the more suits you open for the declarer the better for him it is. Unless hopeless to continue a suit, do not shift to another suit. That is playing the declarer's game.

GRIM FORTS LINE BORDERS OF BELGIUM

first shot went overhead, the second fell short, the third hit the target and the fort had ceased to exist.

Now there is an uninterrupted chain of almost invisible forts running all the way from the French border to the frontiers of Holland. This chain bristles with fifty thousand machine-gun emplacements. Behind this first line stretches a second row of disappearing guns, which come to the surface along a spiral-threadway, fire a round and sink back into the earth and finally a third line of heavy artillery so artfully camouflaged that nothing is visible above the earth's surface.

KEEP FIGHTING OUT OF BELGIUM

Between these lines are the mobile camps, occupied by the field army with a complete equipment of mechanized units, tanks, armored cars, aviation and field artillery. These camps can be pushed forward into enemy territory and then become jumping-off places for attack. The Belgian government is determined that in the event of another armed conflict between France and Germany the fighting will not take place on Belgian territory.

As there are no defences on the French border, it must be clear that the Belgian government looks upon Germany as the only possible aggressor. But what will happen if the German army instead of coming from the east, swings down through the southern part of Holland, as almost happened in 1914, and comes into Belgium from the north? Then the whole new row of forts would be absolutely useless and soon enough be cut off from the rest of the country.

The Dutch army is in no position to keep the Germans out. Holland has hitherto flatly refused to join a Franco-Belgian military alliance. Hence Belgium is compelled to build another defence line in the north on the Dutch border. This line is also under construction now. It will take the form of a row of forts and a deep strategic canal, the Albert canal, running at right angles with the defence line on the east. Where the two lines meet an immense fort is under construction known as Eben-Emael.

BELGIUM TIED TO FRANCE

It goes without saying that the cost of these gigantic military enterprises represents a terrific drain on the treasury of so small a country, and consequently that there is a good deal of opposition to the defence schemes. Not merely popular dissatisfaction with the immense outlay of money, but some far more serious opposition of a political nature.

Opponents of the defence system which is based on the Franco-Belgian military alliance of 1920 charge that Belgium has degraded herself to the position where she is only an extension of France, not even enjoying provincial autonomy since she must follow France in everything that country undertakes. Belgium is not an independent country, they say, since she has no freedom to choose her own path, cannot pick her own friends but is bound hand and foot to Paris.

This feeling is especially strong in Flanders, where the French influence is and always has been considered nefarious. The Flemings are a Teutonic people. They speak the Dutch language. They have nothing in common with the French-speaking Walloons, who naturally strongly experience the influence of France. Flanders is a unilingual country, and not, as the Canadian offical history of the war asserts, bilingual.

A hundred years ago when the Belgian state was created and the Flemings were torn away from Holland it was thought in Brussels and Paris that they would in turn become [illegible] that they would be [illegible] but the very opposite has happened. They have become more race conscious than ever.

DRIFT TOWARD NAZISM

They were only half heartedly in the last war on the side of France and there is a growing Flemish national movement today modelled upon the German Nazi party which [illegible] that it will not [illegible] the youth of Flanders for the sake of France in an eventual war of the future.

[illegible] both Flanders and Wallonia believe in disarmament and would like to see an arrangement with the great powers, whereby Belgian neutrality [illegible] guaranteed.

So far, although Belgium appears a [illegible] to the outside world, it is in reality a state [illegible] 'since the war it has become clear that Flanders cannot be frenchified.

KING HAS DIFFICULT TASK

The [illegible] with France. The Flemings [illegible] more and more in the other direction and with them the demand for separation and common [illegible] Holland grows. The place [illegible] in an extremely difficult position. It is no pleasant experience for him to hear the Flemings sing the Dutch national anthem instead of the official Belgian hymn as recently occurred in two Flemish cities.

Leopold III [illegible] a difficult task when he ascended a kingdom [illegible] two peoples [illegible] opposed in culture, language and tradition, the one Teutonic-Dutch, the other Latin-French. Even the union of two kindred peoples, Norway and Sweden, went on the rocks in 1905.

Labatt, president of the brewery firm which bears the name, was held captive by kidnappers [illegible] $150,000 ransom [illegible] about 23-year-old cousin of the [illegible] is believed lost with a companion [illegible] from Lunenburg, N.S. MORE ELASTIC EXPORT QUOTA ON WHEAT AIM

New Agreement for World Producers Would Keep Conference Alive

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Draft of a plan for a new international wheat agreement, it was learned last night, has been completed for submission to the 21 governments adhering to the present pact and represented in the world conference here.

A much more flexible plan for control of exports than used during the past twelve months was understood to be one of the features of the proposed new agreement which, it was stated, "merely aims at keeping intact the international agreement for regulation of the world wheat trade for another year."

[illegible] chance for a quota agreement in the current crop year, in the view of some delegates, would be adoption of a scheme so flexible as to be practically meaningless so far as rigid control of exports is concerned. As one way out of the deadlock a committee is considering a French proposal to set aside a large portion of the expected world demand in the form of a reserve which might be allocated as the advisory commission sees fit, over and above any quotas individually.

SEEK CO-OPERATION

In an effort to get Argentine co-operation John V. A. MacMurray and Lloyd V. Steere held a long private consultation at the United States embassy last night with Rodolfo Garcia Arias, Argentine representative.

Garcia Arias telephoned to Le Breton at Paris for instructions shortly before the meeting began.

The reserve plan is an ingenious proposal from France which had the initial support of most other delegates. The idea is to leave a [illegible] amount out of the estimated world demand after allotting the quotas to the principal exporters and from this reserve the exporters would be allotted extra amounts as and when it was considered desirable by the wheat advisory commission.

Paul Devinat of France introduced the proposal. It was designed as an alternative to the idea of breaking up the yearly quotas into three-month period.

The conference has already fairly well agreed that a figure of 600,000,000 bushels might be considered the effective world demand for the current crop year.

Seven Mines In Idaho Burned

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 21—Seven mines were burned under in the Boise basin forest fire, the Mascot, Lucky Boy, Forest King, Illinois, Grambrinus, Mary Lou and Gold Coin, all gold properties operating in the area from which scores of millions were taken by placer operations three-score years ago.

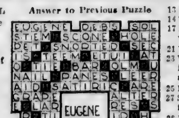

The mining loss was estimated at more than $80,000 and a score or more of miners have been thrown out of work.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Think you will have some more dullness and sagging prices today. The market has not receded as yet to a point from which it would be in a position to rally for any one of a number of reasons and until it does so I am not going to expect much in the way of rally and would advise you to assume the same attitude.

Continue of the belief that as, if, and when prices recede as expected, stocks should be bought on the scale down. I do not wish to imply that you should indulge in blind or indiscriminate buying. The stocks I have suggested of late continue to appear to be the rally favorites and I would have no hesitancy in buying them moderately under where they closed last night.

The dullness in the market is really favorable for it implies that stocks are not pressing for sale but are being well held.

Dull inactive markets usually imply that a turn is close at hand. Am of the opinion that this rule applies in the current market and that at a very early date rising prices are again to make their appearance. A session or so more of dull sagging prices should just about complete the moderate setback anticipated.

I think you are going to find out that this week will close infinitely more impressive tha nit opened. Underneath the surface of things there is deep rooted confidence that business is merely marking time, awaiting some slight encouragement from the administration that it can go ahead and conduct its affairs without undue restrictions or interferences. Despite all the publicity given of late regarding non-inflationary measures by the administration, inflation is at work and is generating the power that must inevitably increase industrial activity and advance security prices.

Whitney Letter

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The reports that the U.S. was importing Canadian durum wheat and feeding grains was a strengthening factor in European markets yesterday. Quantities on passage to Europe have increased steadily during recent weeks and the total of 40,407,000 is the largest since last March. A month ago quantities afloat amounted to 32,312,000 and last year at this time 32,072,000, this increase is due to the unusually large supplies put afloat from the Argentine recently.

Arrivals in the U. K. and on the continent totalled only 4,864,000 during the past week, compared with 7,568,000 the previous week and 7,992,000 during last year. Liverpool wheat stocks now total 5,016,000 compared with 5,184,000 last week and 1,736,000 a year ago.

The foreign demand for Canadian wheat was again quiet yesterday, fair sales of Canadian barley to the U.S. have been reported recently and some oats business was believed to have been worked.

Yesterday a compilation of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture places the wheat crop in 38 countries of the northern hemisphere, excluding China and Russia, at 2,798,733,000 bushels which compares with 3,129,147,000 last year. The countries included account for approximately 99 per cent of the northern hemisphere outturn, exclusive of China and Russia.

WHEAT PRICES SLIDE AFTER EARLY GAINS

WINNIPEG, Aug. 21. — Weighted with heavy selling, mostly hedges against purchases of new-crop wheat at country elevators, wheat futures prices slipped from earlier advances to close unchanged to ⅛ cent higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Closing figures were at or near the session's low levels, October at 85⅝ cents, December 86½-⅝ and May 90¼ cents.

Marketings of new-crop wheat at country points Monday passed the 1,000,000-bushel mark for the first time this season. Export sales of Canadian wheat estimated at 750,000 bushels restrained the late downtrend.

Cleveland manager is greeted by son Eddie upon his arrival.

DAYS and DANS by —BILL LEWIS—

Just a little bit of everything:

Gene Carrigan, Edmonton member of Detroit's hockey Red Wings, is back in the city for a stay before returning to the East for next winter's ice campaigning. . . . Although he usually summers here, Gene has been working in Detroit during the current off-season.

Pete McCready, Cubs' outfield star, may play for Cadomin in the coming provincial playdowns. It's said. . . . Pete has had quite a variety of baseball jobs this summer, starting the season as manager of Cadomin before returning to his old post with the Cubs. . . . Then he was to have linked up with Wetaskiwin for the playdowns and actually did play an exhibition game with them the other day. . . . However, the dope now is that the slugger may be in the Cadomin lineup when the Miners come here to start their championship bid. . . .

Insinuations that your agent caught absolutely no fish on a recent expedition to Lac la Nonne will soon be disproved when pictures of the catch are developed; that is, it's hoped it will be soon. . . . How about em, Mr. Murdoch?

Good news for baseball fans that arrangements have been completed for a team of major league all-stars to play here in October. . . . Followers of the sport retain pleasant memories of the last visit by Earl Mack's team two years ago and have been looking forward with no little relish to another appearance. . . . That the genial Jimmy Foxx is to be a member of this party makes the prospect brighter than ever.

Cameron Mackinnon, Edmonton boy who became referee-in-chief of the American Hockey League last year, is summering in Borger, Texas. . . . He tells me the A.L. clubs are looking for some new young material for next winter. . . .

Things are beginning to hum no little in New York where Jimmy McLarnin will try to regain his welterweight crown from Barney Ross on September 26. Ross, already on the scene, is telling the folks he'll beat Jimmy worse this time, and the customers are already keeping the ticket-sellers busy. . . .

Speaking of fights, Mike Kaplansky is bustling around these days getting everything in readiness for the card he is promoting here on August 31, featuring boxer, Ed Wenstob, against Joe Verquin, claimant of the lightheavyweight championship of New France. . . . Wenstob, highly popular in Alberta's rural centres, will be making his debut in Edmonton and is training hard for it daily at the Y.M.C.A. under the careful eyes of Louis Lazarus.

Webb King's Royals tonight will be in the position where they must whip the Shastas or be eliminated from the Senior baseball playoffs. . . . That's a tight spot to be in but they're still hopeful, even in the face of three previous setbacks—all shutouts.

Edmonton's softball hopes—the Recreations—passed from the 1934 title hunt yesterday when they were beaten twice at Wetaskiwin. . . . The town to the south took the first game 5-1 and followed this up with an 8-1 triumph to prove their right to the Northern Alberta championship.

EIGHT ENTER SECOND ROUND IN BANFF GOLF

Hoblitzell and McWilliams Advance In Prince of Wales Meet

BANFF, Alta., Aug. 20.—Out of a field of over 150 men and women golfers entered in the Prince of Wales and Brewster cup tournaments which opened Banff's golf week yesterday, only eight men and eight women survived for today's championship play. The Banff Springs golf course undoubtedly went the busiest day in its history, and darkness caused the postponement of some of the minor flights.

Fred G. Hoblitzell of Toronto, former winner of the Prince of Wales trophy, and Gordon McWilliams of Calgary, runner-up a couple of seasons ago, both qualified safely for the second round in the Prince of Wales play. Hoblitzell incidentally carded a 75 in his first round, the lowest score so far made in the current competition, and Mrs. Willard Shepherd of Los Angeles led the Brewster cup scores with a creditable 88.

The first round of play in the Willingdon cup handicap starts this afternoon.

The male survivors for today's Prince of Wales eliminations are Fred G. Hoblitzell, Toronto; Dr. Joseph Rifsun, Wykagyl Golf Club; J. G. Chaston, Calgary; L. C. Crosby, Banff; William McMullen, San Francisco; Gordon McWilliams, Calgary; N. Desbrisay, Winnipeg, and J. Kilgour, Winnipeg.

The women who qualified for today's first round for the Brewster cup are Mrs. Willard E. Shepherd, Los Angeles; Miss Dean E. McMillan, Calgary; Miss Winifred Evans, Vancouver; Mrs. J. Train Gray, many times city champion of Calgary; Mrs. N. Desbrisay, Winnipeg; Mrs. S. H. Maddocks, Edmonton; Mrs. Lewis Kaye, Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. G. Hamilton, Vancouver.

Eskimos To Clash With Army-Navy In Tilt Tonight

A. R. Lawrence's snappy squad of Eskimos will clash with Army and Navy girls tonight in a scheduled encounter of the City Girls' Baseball League at Boyle street. The game will get away at 6:45 o'clock.

Eskimos will be after a triumph tonight in order to keep in the running with the leader Leading Safeways and they will be out to turn back the store forces. Army and Navy team, on the other hand, also need the triumph in order to maintain behind the Eskimos and they will be fielding their best in order to humble the highly-touted Esks.

HUBBELL BEATS CINCINNATI REDS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 21.—Calling on Carl Hubbell to check the Reds for the second time in as many days, New York Giants ran their winning streak to five straight games and their lead over the idle Cubs to four games as they defeated Cincinnati 7-4 yesterday. Hubbell, who received credit for his sixth triumph of the year, was touched for seven hits, issued no balls and in the eight, with Reds perched on second and third and only one out, Hubbell was called to the rescue.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 21.—Pittsburgh Pirates finally broke the spell which Brooklyn Dodgers held over them, winning yesterday's game 6-2 after losing eight straight to Casey Stengel's men.

Hitting of Bill Swift and the hitting of the Waner brothers were largely responsible for the triumph.

RECREATIONS MEET DEFEAT IN SOFTBALL

Wetaskiwin Eliminates Edmonton Team In Two Straight

WETASKIWIN, Aug. 21.—Wetaskiwin British Consols won the Northern Alberta soft ball pennant and the right to meet Southern champions by defeating Edmonton Recreations in both ends of a double-header here. The Consols took the first game by 2 to 1 and the second by 8 to 1 margin.

Kronfeld, Wetaskiwin pitcher established a definite superiority over Kalensky, Edmonton's ace tosser, by holding the visitors in the first game to one hit, with eight strikeouts, against 5 hits and 13 strikeouts for Kalensky. Edmonton's only run in the first game was unearned, while three hits by the Consols were responsible for two runs in the fourth frame. Berzins and Kronfeld making home on a safe hit by Watson.

In the second game Kalensky allowed 11 hits. Three in the second inning brought in two runs, two in the fourth brought one run and three hits and an error produced three runs in the seventh, two more scores came in the eighth from an error and a hit.

The fourth inning looked dangerous for Wetaskiwin when Kronfeld allowed three hits, but the home boys' air tight fielding prevented more than a single score.

Wetaskiwin Consols will meet either Calgary Greyhounds or Lethbridge and either will find Kronfeld a hard man to hit, in which event they will find it equally hard to gather runs.

LINE-UP

Wetaskiwin (British Consols) — Bergen, Rankin, Richards, Kronfeld, Watson, Brickman, Creiner, Ash, Farmer.

Edmonton (Recreations)—Venau, Mutter, Lynn, Mellon, Kalensky, Colquhoun, Koel, McCrath, McNab.

Shastas Can Clinch Ball Title Tonight

Royals Must Win To Stay In Running for Senior Baseball Crown

Shastas can clinch the championship of Edmonton's Senior Baseball league tonight when they clash with Royals in the fourth game of the playoff at Renfrew Park, and there's always a chance they may not.

With three straight shut-outs behind them in as many starts, Shastas need only a single triumph to take the league crown. They have also made strong favorites as a result of their successive wins to make it in four games. However, Royals still believe they can break into the win column and prolong the title series, despite the fact they have not even scored a run to date in the playoff and have secured only 12 hits. Manager King is of the opinion that his hitters are due to break loose and hopes this will happen tonight.

Manager Murdoch's Shasta pitching choice for the fourth game is expected to be Sunny Sunderland, rugged right-hander, who has not seen duty yet in the playoffs. Buck Eaton, ace of the Royals' hurling staff, will likely get the hurling work for his team.

Play starts at 6:15 o'clock.

TWO DEAN BROTHERS COST CARDS PALTRY FIFTY-DOLLAR NOTE

Dizzy Lugged Nutsy Up to St. Louis Team At No Cost Whatever

BY HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Jerome Herman and Paul Dean cost the St. Louis Cardinals just $50. If that isn't a record for "five-and-ten" deals, it will do until a better one bobs up.

Sam Breadon and Co. still have the services of the Deans at bargain rates. Dizzy has turned in 21 victories and is in a fair way to make good his boast that he will win 30 games, and Paul, Nutsy, who has bagged a dozen engagements, gets only $6000. It is Nutsy's first year in the majors.

Between them the Oklahoma lads have accounted for more than half of the games won by the team of Frankie Frisch. They have kept the Red Birds within striking distance of the National League lead, but if you have an idea that they got somewhere when they went on strike in Pittsburgh on June 1, demanding $2500 additional for Paul, you don't know Sam Breadon. The brothers may not be so easy to sign next spring, however, for Dizzy already is asking $18,500 for 1935.

HAS THAT HARD ONE

Weldon Hart, sports editor of the Austin, Tex., American-Statesman, tells me the story of the signing of Dizzy Dean.

It was five years ago at San Antonio that Don Curtis, Cardinal scout, took Everett Ellis, veteran army sergeant and baseball umpire then stationed at Fort Sam Houston, to see Dizzy pitch. The daffy right-hander down there with the Public Service team.

"He's just a big country boy, and he's as dizzy as his nickname, but he's got that high, hard one," replied Ellis.

"How much shall I give him to sign a contract?" asked Curtis, who had been advised by Pancho Snyder, then manager of the Houston club, of the Texas League, St. Louis farm, to take a peek at the big fellow.

"Not a dime, unless you want him to go on a spree and stay A.W.O.L. for a week," said Ellis. "Wave a $50 bill under his nose—he probably never saw one—and he'll be yours."

Curtis took the advice and the $59 bill, saw Dean pitch that afternoon, and signed him the following day.

HE WALKS ON AIR

Dizzy tells of that game himself.

"Curtis hid in the grandstand, and I don't know to this day that he was there. We were playing the Cuban All Stars, a punk team, and I wasn't bearing down any harder than I had to. About the fifth inning, I found out that Curtis was there, and you'd have seen me go then. If a guy made a loud foul off me I'd probably cause I knew that major league contract waving at me. The Cubans got one lucky hit, and that before I found out that Curtis was in the stand. I struck out about 10. After the game Curtis asked me to meet him at the Hamilton hotel the next day. I didn't touch the ground going home. I walked on air."

Curtis also gave the Public Service team manager $50 to comfort him on losing his star.

That made $100 the Cards paid for Dizzy Dean, but all the same time Curtis picked up for nothing a kid brother of the recruit pitcher, who decided he'd like to do what-ever Dizzy did. The kid's name was Paul Dean.

GETS ARMY RELEASE

Many are the memories of soldier life and baseball personalities that Everett Ellis has garnered during 24 years in the service, but none he likes better to recount than those of the gangling country boy named Dean, who became a doughboy because he was hungry and needed a pair of shoes.

Dean's father arranged for his son's release from the army.

Ellis, now attached to 8th organized reserve corps and stationed at Austin, where he umpires Texas League games, is proud to have had something to do with starting Dean on his spectacular career.

"Dizzy's cockiness is entirely natural," according to Ellis, who worked behind the Cardinal ace when he was a gawky army chucker in an ill-fitting uniform without a shirt, which he entered his service.

"Dizzy always knew he was good, and says no reason to keep the fact a secret," Ellis told Hart.

Ellis umpired many games in which Dizzy fanned army and San Antonio City League batters right and left.

As the umpire took his post behind the pitcher's box, Dean would remark: "Watch this one, Ellis; there's going to be something on it."

Then Dizzy would shout to his catcher, who had a bad finger on his throwing hand, "Keep that stiff finger out of the way, Thompson, here comes something!"

And sure enough, something would come. It's still coming.

CALLIES MEET RADIAL SQUAD ON WEDNESDAY

Dragoons Cup Competition To Commence Here On Saturday

A heavy soccer schedule was planned by the Soccer Council last night with Callies meeting Radials in a scheduled game of the First Division league on Wednesday at Diamond Park and following Wednesday's game the Dragoons Cup competition will get underway with the first clash Saturday night. Wednesday's match will start at 6:45 o'clock, with Billy Munro appointed the referee.

Although the Radials have a slight edge over their Scottish opponents, Callies will be after full pointage and they will be stiff opposition for the classy Radial eleven. These two teams have played on fairly even terms throughout the schedule and the Radials have only the narrowest margin of leadership in the standings.

Eatons of the second division league, once triumphant over the Scots, will open their campaign in the Dragoons cup competition when they clash with Callies on Saturday at Diamond Park. This will be the first game of the competition and all are sudden death matches.

The second round will find Eatons meeting the winner of the Eatons and Callies game on Wednesday, Aug. 29, while Radials will play Hudson Bay in the third round on Saturday, September 1.

The finals of this competition will be played on Saturday, September 8.

MAX BAER ASKS IMPORTANT CASH

LAKE TAHOE, Calif., Aug. 21.—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, world's heavyweight champion, announced here Monday he had turned down a guarantee of $100,000 for his fighter to meet the winner of the Max Schmeling — Walter Neusel bout in Hamburg. The offer came from Walter Rothenburg, Berlin promoter, Hoffman said.

Hoffman made a counter-proposal of a $500,000 guarantee. Baer, he said, will be too busy in the immediate future making motion pictures and theatrical appearances to consider a smaller offer.

Jimmy Foxx Among Starry Ensemble: Heading For Japan

Arrangements Completed For Games Here First Week In October

Baseball fans of Edmonton and Northern Alberta are to be given another opportunity to see many of the world's greatest stars in action here as a result of negotiations completed over the week-end.

It was announced by Clarence Campbell, secretary of the Senior League, that he had concluded arrangements for a visit to this city of the band of big league "greats" that are to tour Japan this coming winter. They have been persuaded to come to this city on their way to the land of the Nipponese and will probably play at least two games here.

Exact date of their arrival is not yet known but it will in all probability be during the first week of October.

LIKE THEIR SHOOTING

Stories of the wonderful duck and chicken shooting in this district, told around big league camps following the visit of the last team in 1932, had a great deal to do with their decision to stop off here. The players on that first club, too, did not make any secret of their pleasure at the fine treatment accorded them by Edmontonians.

This year's squad will be entirely composed of outstanding stars of the game, including some of the greatest in the sport's history.

Jimmy Foxx, sensational slugger of Philadelphia Athletics, is one who will be on the roster, as well as his brilliant young team mate, Frank Higgins, who was chosen on the American League all-star team this summer.

GROVE COMING, TOO.

Lefty Grove, central figure in the stupendous deal between Athletics and Boston Red Sox last spring, is another who will be along.

The complete list of those coming is not available as yet, but will be known shortly.

Al Schact, the great comedian who delighted every fan who saw the game they played here on the previous visit, is coming again.

JUNIOR TEAMS END SCHEDULE ON WEDNESDAY

Safeways Must Triumph Over E.A.C. To Keep Leadership

A triumph for Coach Jack Bartley and his crew of Safeways over Edmonton Athletic Club Wednesday night will crown them second half champions of the Junior baseball league. The game tomorrow will get underway at 6:15 o'clock and not 6:30, owing to the early darkness. By virtue of a triumph Safeways will complete the league schedule playing all game ahead of Arrow; qualifying to meet Grits, first half champions in the city playoff.

Should Stan Moher's E.A.C.'s triumph, it will drop Safeways into a first place tie with Arrow, making an extra game necessary to name the sole possessors of the leading title.

Edmonton Athletic Club has a strong desire to emerge victors over the Safeways and they will be fielding their strongest possible lineup.

DIZZY MAKES PEACE AGAIN WITH FRISCH

Suspension Lifted After Noisy Conference On Monday

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—Dizzy Dean and the Cardinals, after loud and prolonged wrangling, were at peace again last night.

That the Dizzy one was reinstated by Manager Frankie Frisch following a hearing before baseball's "Czar", Kenesaw Mountain Landis. Much dirty linen came in for noisy discussion at the hearing.

In theory, the hearing, by decree of Landis, was closed. In fact, however, the discussion became so noisy that it sounded through hotel corridors.

PUNISHMENT OKAY

This was the seventh day of Dizzy's suspension, which he brought on by failing to attend an exhibition game at Detroit Monday, August 13, and by balking at a $100 fine. Landis found the suspension of 10 days imposed by Frisch on the star right-hand pitcher was not unreasonable.

"Whether Dizzy shall come back before the 10 days are up is between the club and the president," he said.

"Let's make it seven," said Manager Frisch.

Rebellion against the club discipline cost Dizzy $486, his pay for seven days, which he loses through suspension, amounting to $350. Two uniforms he tore on being informed by Frisch he was indefinitely suspended, cost $36, and he was fined $100 at the outset.

PAUL IS WITNESS

Paul, pitching brother of Dizzy, also suspended for not making the Detroit trip, attended the hearing as a witness. Paul was reinstated last week when he paid a $50 fine, plus the loss of two days pay.

A question of the instigation of Dizzy's alleged sore arm on a New York invasion a short while ago came up in the noisy discussion. It brought out that Dizzy said at New York that he would develop a sore arm whenever he needed it.

Corbett Retains Bantam Laurels

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Fighting in defence of his British Empire bantamweight boxing championship, Dick Corbett could do no better than gain a draw with Johnny King in a 15-round bout at Clayton Stadium here Monday night. King is a former champion and having lost the crown to Corbett was fighting a return bout.

36-HOLE FINAL FOR TOTEM POLE

JASPER PARK LODGE, Aug. 21.—One of the features of the tennis tournament will be the final match which commences here on August 26, is that the Dizzy Dean and Jay Hanna trophy will be played over the thirty-six hole route. For the last eight years the championship has been decided over eighteen holes but, because of popular demand, the tournament committee has made the change this year.

"All the other big tournaments play their finals at 36 holes and there is no reason you don't at Jasper," is the summary of opinion of most of the golfers who have participated. This change will be very popular this year, as it will bring out a superior test of golf and will afford the always large gallery a morning and an afternoon of championship golf.

The Totem Pole golf tournament has attracted such a fine type of golfer that entries from all over the province have been highly ranked in Pacific Northwest golfing circles. Totem Pole golf champion in a much coveted title and rises in dignity and importance each year.

All important golf centres from Winnipeg to the Pacific Coast, including Seattle and Portland will be represented this year, and the hunt after champion honors promises to be the keenest on record.

DEAD HEAT SEEN AT COAST TRACK

VANCOUVER, Aug. 21. — Puako from the stables of J. J. Ross, and Pop, Leo Bancroft's sprinter, raced down the stretch to the wire in the Kitsilano handicap, feature event on Monday's Brighouse Park racing program, to finish in a dead heat, the first of the season and only the second in 14 years.

Both horses came from far back to stage spectacular sprints and finish neck and neck.

Pop, the favorite, paid $3.75, $4.15 and $3.50, while Puako rewarded his backers with $16.55, $10.10 and $10.90.

MONCTON HOCKEY STAR SUSPENDED

MONCTON, N.B., Aug. 21—Burley defence star of the Moncton Hawks, 1933 and 1934 amateur hockey champions of Canada, Leo Burrage, yesterday was suspended from competition in all fields of amateur sport, pending investigation into alleged ungentlemanly conduct on the baseball fields.

C. Gillespie, president of the Maritime branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada announced the suspension of Burrage, lumberjack defenceman of the Canadian National apprentices baseball team, is alleged to have attacked Umpire-in-chief Frank Fogarty following a final play-off game in the city league.

Five Coast Track Stars Are Entered In Hamilton Meet

VANCOUVER, Aug. 21.—Five little-limbed Vancouver youths will carry British Columbia colors in the Canadian schoolboy track and field events at Hamilton August 25.

Marshall Limon, fleet quarter-miler, and Martin Naylor, sprinter and broad jumper, remained in the east after they failed to earn a place on the Canadian British Empire Games trial. Both are eligible for the schoolboy games and both will compete.

Joe Rose, Howard McPhee and Mansfield Beech have left for Hamilton to complete the team.

Rose excels at the high and broad jumps, McPhee is a sprinter, and Beech is an unusually good half-miler.

Win Final Encounter By Small Margin Of 1-0 Score — Error Proves Costly To Leafs

DRUMHELLER, Aug. 21—Winning a pair of games Sunday, Drumheller Commercials made a clean sweep of their final play-off series with Carston Maple Leafs last night when they took a close 1-0 victory in the third and deciding encounter, and with their triumph they captured the Alberta Intermediate baseball championship.

A walk to Hawkins of Drumheller and an error to the Leafs third sacker gave Drumheller their winning run in the third inning, further scoring being impossible as both moundsmen turned in four-hit twirling performances.

In a twilight fixture that was made an exhibition affair after the Commercials had captured the championship, Carston took a 7-6 victory over the local lads.

Apart from this slip-up in the third inning, the battle was the toughest of the series with play restricted to the first two bases and the opposing pitchers staging an interesting duel. In the tussle Tom Raisbeck, occupying the mound for the Commercials got the edge on moundsman A. Cahoon, both allowing four hits with the victorious pitcher getting six strike-outs and walking one while his opponent fanned nine but walked three, his first walk being the disastrous one.

Of the four hits registered by the victors, Owens and Slater made two baggers.

LEAFS WIN EXHIBITION

The jinx which followed the Leafs throughout the entire series, was lifted in the last half of the ninth of an exhibition game played for an evening fixture Monday, after Bohne's homer, the only one of the week-end series, was disallowed in the eighth when the eagle-eyed umpire caught him passing up bases on his circular tour. The homer, reduced to a one-base hit, brought in the losing score of six-six in the ninth with the Commercials dismissed in quick order, the southerners opened the second half with a single from Long who was advanced by Brooks only to be put out on a throw to third. A. Cahoon reached first on an error with Leavitt being fanned and Thomas to walk, a safety which brought in Brooks for the winning run.

Junior Soccer Eleven Playing Hearts Tonight

Tonight at Diamond Park, commencing at 6:30 sharp, the Norwood Royals and the Hearts clash in an exhibition game that should be of interest to followers of the fair sized game.

Royals, a powerful junior club, have been enjoying a successful season this year. Last season they cleaned up in their division and runners are to the effect that they intend entering senior company next year.

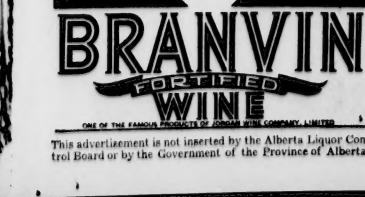

Hearts have met with very little success in the First Division, but are capable of playing a good brand of soccer, providing they feel like doing so.

Tonight's game should be well worth seeing and will give football enthusiasts a chance to guage just how good the juniors are. For several years the junior boys have been playing good games, with the result that the junior league is commanding considerable attention.

Royals will depend on the following: G. Kerr, F. Gardner, W. Gardner, N. Neale, H. Griggs, J. Cram, D. Abbott, R. Mitchell, K. Beresford, J. Mitchell, F. Hyde, W. Smith and J. McGlip.

Hearts will line up as follows: Shaw, Whiteley, Denford, Nesbit, Chong, Boyd, Pickles, Collier, Ferguson, Kirk, Denim, Hilditch, Greenlees, Paton, Cram, Kerr, Lunde and Paternen.

Canadians Score Wins At Empire Games

When Canada this year sent a team to England for the British Empire Games at London it was not conceded much chance of upholding the country's fine record in international athletics. But the team fooled everyone, as teams often do, and, while they do not lead the list, they are a bang-up second. Particularly are the swimmers to the fore, they having more or less cleaned up everything in sight. Miss Phyllis Dewar (centre), pretty, dark-haired winsome from Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, was the outstanding star for the Canadians, winning the 100- and 440-yard free style events, and acting as anchor on two winning relay teams. She collects four first place medals. George Burleigh (lower right), of Toronto, won two events for the team, the 100-yard free style and as anchor in the relay. Harold Webster (upper left) is marathon champion, having established a new record for the distance. Sam Richardson, 13-year-old Toronto coloured lad (upper right), won the running broad jump from the best the empire could offer, while Robert Dixon, a Vancouver athlete (lower left), threw the javelin farther than any other empire athlete. All in all, with Judith Deans of Winnipeg winning the diving event, Canada has done nobly in the Empire Games.

Hollywood Death Is Being Probed

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—The death of Jerry Jarnegin, music composer and husband of Irene Franklin, musical comedy actress, offered Hollywood a new puzzle.

Jarnegin's lifeless body, a bullet wound in the right temple, was found in a large overstuffed easy chair in the living room of his home on Lake Hollywood drive Sunday night. The revolver which caused his death was found in another chair about six feet away.

A thorough investigation was ordered by Captain Bert Wallis, head of the Los Angeles police department homicide squad. Wallis said, however, the case appeared to him to be one of suicide.

EXPECT FIREWORKS APLENTY AT AMATEUR UNION MEETING

Move To Change Rules On Pro-Amateur Question Is Expected

By W. M. GLADISH

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—Already tongues are wagging regarding prospective developments at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, scheduled to be held in Toronto this fall. The momentum of the annual "putsch" in amateur circles will shortly get its start with the holding of the yearly gatherings of the various union branches across the Dominion—all of these must be held at least five or six weeks before the national convention because all proffered amendments to the constitution and rules must be in the hands of Secretary John Lyall at Edmonton at more than 30 days before the general session.

The talk in branch circles and elsewhere is quite interesting. And the matters under consideration are comprehensive. There is a movement on foot to call for the establishment of distinct governing bodies for track and field athletics and for boxing and wrestling. George H. Beedham, of Toronto, has already drawn up a proposal for a Canadian Track and Field Association and he apparently has the cooperation of officials of at least two other branches, namely Howard Foreman of Hamilton and J. Barclay, of Thorold, representing the new southwestern branch, and R. D. Campbell and McGregor Easson, of Ottawa, representing the eastern Ontario branch. Details of the proposed organization have been sent to the national secretary.

APPLY TO GOVERNMENT

As for the self-governing boxing association, F. E. Nobert, of Toronto, boxing supervisor of the central Ontario branch, recently made application to the federal government for an association charter but the matter has been tabled by Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, pending a decision of the A.A.U. annual meeting "satisfactory to the applicant." F. E. Edwards, of Fort William, secretary of the Thunder Bay branch of the A.A.U., has expressed himself as being personally in favor of the establishment of a governing body for boxing in the Dominion. There is no evident intention to break away from the A.A.U. but those identified with these sports desire the privileges enjoyed by team sport associations in the way of self-control.

The Ontario situation will undoubtedly come in for much attention. Intimation has already been made that a request will be present for a further branch of the A.A.U. for the Niagara peninsular, while northern Ontario has also caught the idea of a separate branch for that part of the province. If these are planted, there would then be six branches within the boundaries of Ontario, including the present organizations of Thunder Bay, central Ontario, southwestern and eastern Ontario.

MANY ORE MONEY

It is an open secret that a number of existing branches owe considerable fees to the national treasury. Some of them have not paid their annual $100 dues for one or more years. The Manitoba branch still owes the union the fee of $250 for the Canadian boxing and wrestling championships which were staged at Winnipeg in the spring of 1933. Thunder Bay branch has $50 to pay on the Canadian track and field championships which were held at Fort William in July of last year, it is stated. British Columbia, eastern Ontario and other branches are behind in their annual dues to a substantial amount, it is said. In fact, the annual reports have shown them to be in default for several years. One suggested outcome is the proposal to cut all national fees and dues possibly in half, wipe out all bad debts and then make it obligatory to pay the reduced commitments.

A proposal is being discussed to share amateur card registration fees with the provincial sport-governing bodies on a per capita basis to give the organizations some of the money they need to breath, it is suggested that the amateur card tax of two cents per card should be revised.

It is probable, judging by present-day trends, that a demand will be made for the abolishment of the $5 reinstatement fee for former professionals and that only a nominal charge should be made for reinstatement applications to cover time and postage costs.

PRO-AMATEUR RULES

There will undoubtedly be a move to change the rule which permits an amateur team to play a professional team under certain conditions and yet does not allow amateurs to play against each other on the same program with a professional game. The argument is advanced that it surely is a worse "crime" for amateurs to play professionals than to play with each other as a "curtain-raiser" for a pro. feature for charity or otherwise.

SEEDED STARS ARE DEFEATED IN U.S. MEET

Lott-Stoefen Set Pace In Tennis Tourney At Philadelphia

By SID FEDER

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—Paced by the mighty combination of George Lott and Lester Stoefen, ambitious to retain their crown, the field of 32 players in the United States doubles tennis championships whittled itself in half yesterday, but first round play took an unexpected toll in the seeded list.

Although none of the ranking duos which saw action during the day came close to defeat, a default by Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, the Atlanta ace, and his New York mate, Gene McCaulliff, left only seven of the eight ranked American pairs in the second round bracket. Along with them went Fred Perry and Frank Wilde, English ace, and the South African-Czechoslovakian pair of Vernon Kirby and the giant Rodwell Menzel.

Stoefen and Lott mowed down Fred Kuser and M. Harlan White, head of Trenton, N. J., 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 scores.

Perry and Wilde swept to an easy conquest over two former collegians, S. Ellsworth Davenport and Herbert Needham of New York, downing them 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

Wilmer Allican and John Van Ryn, former champions and Davis cup players, suppressed C. Alphonse Smith and John Wheatley of Virginia, without once losing the lead. They never extended themselves to pile up a 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 triumph.

Ellwood Morgel, once their plaything as "click", quickly ran out a 7-5, 6-4 victory over two Philadelphians, Herbert Fischer and Ralph De Mott.

Henry (Hal) Prentiss, and Wilmer Hines, Columbia, N.C., defeated Harold Lane, and John Custer, Philadelphia, 6-4, 8-6, 6-2.

ASKS BRITAIN TO BACK JAPS

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Morning Post Monday recommended that Great Britain side with Japan, as against the Soviet Union.

The Kremlin administration, said the Conservative newspaper, wants the Soviet Union to enter the League of Nations in order to use the League to settle ends, especially with regard to the Chinese Eastern railway.

The outcome, it was added, might be a quarrel with Japan, which would be "incredible foolishness."

The Daily Telegraph, also Conservative, devoting a voluminous supplement to the general Japan-Bolshevist situation, regretted the disappearance of the Anglo-Japanese alliance of 10 years ago, "a marked the beginning of chaos and confustion in Asia," the newspaper commented.

EMPIRE SQUAD FORFEITS TILT BIG FIVE LOOP

Red Sox Forced to Use Ineligible Players Against Gibbons

Gibbons took another step nearer the third place National Home Furnishers when they were awarded a 9-0 victory over Empire Hotel Red Sox in a scheduled game of the Big Five league at Boyle Street last night. With two players not eligible for Big Five League competition in their lineup the Red Sox were forced to forfeit the game, but they contested the encounter ending the six-inning tilt on the long end of a 2-1 score.

A stirring mound duel, broken by a costly error in the sixth inning, gave the Boyle Street fans an interesting struggle to watch. Oscar Blais, "ironman" of Gibbons' bowling staff and Wilf Bowen, slender Red Sox twirler, stole the greater part of the spotlight as they battled in possibly one of the best pitcher's battles seen in the Big Five loop for many moons. Blais allowed only one hit while Bowen was nicked for a brace of bingles in the six-inning affair. Poor control by Blais who also made the costly error forced him to concede a slight edge of the twirling honors to Bowen, the latter being seldom in danger of meeting with defeat.

BOTH PLAY WELL

The players ineligible were Ken Malcolm and Jim Barker, backstop and second baseman, respectively. Both played well throughout the game and were highly effective in the infield. Barker taking three chances without a slip while Malcolm worked well behind the plate receiving Bowen's slants.

McKernan, first sacker and Naudeau, left field for Gibbons each clouted a single. They were the only batsmen able to find the elusive slants Bowen was twirling. G. Able, guardian of the right corner for Empire Hotel, hit safely twice, getting all of the Red Sox's batting honors as the remaining players were given little opportunity to clout Blais' offerings as the latter twirled airtight ball to less than 11 Empire batters back to the bench as strikeouts in his six-inning stint.

Empire Hotel started out in a winning style with a single tally in the first inning. This margin was wiped out by Gibbons in the fourth, but the latter team quickly added one, only to see the local lads step out ahead of them when Blais allowed one batter to take a free ride on balls and then he threw the game away by making an error as Reid was served.

British War Guns Fired First Shot Twenty Years Ago

Tomorrow Marks Anniversary of Commencement of Hostilities

By CAPT. W. W. MURRAY, M.C.

Tomorrow will be the 20th anniversary of the day the first shots of the Great War were exchanged between British and German forces. While troop trains bearing Canada's first 30,000 were still thundering across the Dominion to the mobilization point at Valcartier, Que., hostilities between Great Britain and Germany had already opened.

Commanded by Field Marshal Sir John French, the British Expeditionary Force began disembarking on French soil on Aug. 7, 1914. Nine days later this operation had been completed and two Army Corps and the Cavalry Division were on the march northward towards Belgium to resist the invading enemy. The entire infantry of the original B.E.F. comprised only four divisions—the First and Second forming the First Corps under Sir Douglas Haig and the Third and Fifth the Second Corps under Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien. (The fourth Division reached the scene of hostilities a couple of days after the retreat from Mons began and went immediately into action with the Second Corps at Le Cateau.)

BRITISH MOVE UP

Completing their concentration on Friday, Aug. 21, the British army moved forward the next day. It took up a position which extended roughly east and west, from Conde (about eight miles north of Valenciennes) to Binche (about 10 miles west-by-south of Mons.) The town of Mons was the dividing point and was held by the Third Division.

First contact with the enemy was secured by a cavalry patrol of the 4th Dragoon Guards which had pushed forward to Soignies, seven miles north of Mons and on the road leading to Brussels. This patrol sighted a piquet of Uhlans, fired on it and drove it off. Later in the day the 4th Middlesex regiment, who hold the salient at the junction of the two Corps between Nimy and Obourg, north-west of Mons, were attacked by German cavalry. In a brief but brisk encounter the Uhlans were repulsed.

MINOR ENGAGEMENTS

This would seem to have constituted the only actions on August 22; but, insignificant as they were, they signalized an historic event in that they marked the exchange of the first shots.

TO GRADUALLY PLACE JOBLESS

There will be no block placement of unemployed married men on relief works in national parks, according to A. U. G. Bury, member for East Edmonton, who told the Bulletin that his advices from Ottawa was to the effect that the placing of married unemployed in camps in the park would be a gradual process.

He also stressed the fact that work would be provided for single men in these camps who had domestic responsibilities, and also that the placements would not be confined to men now on relief, but would also be open to those who were on the verge of coming on relief. Mr. Bury could make no statement as to the number of men who would be taken from Edmonton.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Age limit for air liner pilots has been set by the air ministry at 45 years, with 19 years the minimum.

GRANT GOES TO JASPER-EDSON

JASPER, Aug. 21.—Hon. J. J. McLellan, Minister of Highways, explained to the members of the Jasper Chamber of Commerce gathered in the Athabasca hotel on Monday night the progress already made on the Jasper highway and the meaning of the Federal grant of $125,000. This latter is to be allotted to the highway between Edson and Jasper and contracts will be let as soon as official confirmation of this has been received by the highway department.

The word of this allocation was brought from the conference of provincial premiers recently attended by Hon. Geo. Hoadley and no doubt the work will be let to contractors very shortly. Also guests of the evening were deputy minister H. Keith and Chris Pattinson, M.L.A. The entire party motored from Edmonton and had no trouble on the road. Work on the section east of Edson is proceeding rapidly and the first course gravel is about finished.

BRITISH TARS QUIT COLOMBIA

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Nine disgruntled ex-officers of the British navy, vanguard of a group of some 150 officers and sailors who went to Colombia to join that country's fleet, returned to London today and said the others would come home soon.

Off for the South American land in February, they found on arrival there that all was not as bright as they had believed. Colombia wanted them to sign contracts promising to take part in any war over a two-year period, even against Great Britain, and furthermore insisted on paying their salaries in domestic currency, which is worth much less than the pound sterling in exchange.
